John Mullins And Charles McGraw Eligible For Parole Hearings

OPPOSITION IS EXPECTED

1933 Crimes Recalled As Prison Officials Fix Date For Action

Pickaway county law enforcement officials hinted Friday that they will oppose paroles for two confessed kidnapers and conspirators when hearings are conducted in the Ohio State penitentiary on June 1. Eligible for paroles after that date are John "Slim" Mullins, of Huntington, W. Va., and Charles McGraw, of Columbus, who have been serving terms of 10 to 25 years. They were charged with armed robbery because at that time the penalty was the most severe they could receive.

Mullins and McGraw were sentenced to the penitentiary by the late Judge J. W. Adkins in January, 1933, after they pleaded guilty to abducting and robbing O. Miller Beckett, 55, Commercial Point banker and Democratic political leader. Neither has been up for parole until this year, but officials, especially deputy sheriffs who investigated their exploits, have indicated that they will use their influence to prevent parole.

The convicts, with Herbert Bragg, also of Columbus, kidnaped Mr. Beckett from the rear of his home. After trying to force him to open the safe of the Scioto Bank, Commercial Point, of which he is cashier, the men taped him and drove him about in the car.

MR. FISH WOULD CONGRATULATE REICH FUEHRER

NEWPORT, R. I., April 21 — Congressman Hamilton Fish, New York Republican, today was on record with a criticism of President Roosevelt's failure to send birthday congratulations to Adolf Hitler as the act "of a sulky spoiled child."

Speaking before the Newport Discussion Club, the congressman said that King George VI of England and practically all other heads of nations, "in accordance with custom and tradition," had dispatched felicitations to the Reichsfuehrer.

Fish added:

"President Roosevelt acted the part of a sulky, spoiled child when we were personally trying to influence the dictator nations toward the paths of peace. The lack of a congratulatory message from him was utter stupidity and sheer political folly.

"I wonder if we are not in the midst of a dictatorship of our own, based on personal bias and prejudice instead of by law and a genuine desire for world peace."

Jurors Decided Davey Aide Did Not Shakedown Civil Service Employees

COLUMBUS, April 21—With 16 other similar cases awaiting trial, the state prepared today for its second court battle following acquittal of Daniel S. Earhart, one time secretary to former governor Martin L. Davey, on charges of soliciting political campaign funds from civil service employees.

After deliberating less than two hours, a criminal court jury of seven men and five women late yesterday returned a verdict of not guilty in Earhart's case. The trial lasted four days.

Meanwhile Thomas A. Burke, Jr., special assistant attorney general, announced that William Alexander, former supervisor of records in the comptroller's office of the liquor department, will go on trial on similar charges Monday. In all, 17 former state employees were indicted by a special grand jury that investigated alleged solicitation of funds from workers under civil service during the Davey regime.

In his closing argument, John A. Connor, defense attorney, asserted: "There is absolutely no evidence that Earhart demanded that anybody make a Democratic contribution. He told all the classified employees that contributions were entirely voluntary."

NEW YORK CITY POLICE, FIREMEN HARASS GERMANS

NEW YORK, April 21—Storm troopers of the New York pro-Nazi German-American Bund today were smarting under the humiliation of being forced to strip off the most important parts of their uniforms after which they suffered the added indignity of being termed a fire hazard.

It all began last night in a hall in the Bronx where the Bund assembled to celebrate Adolf Hitler's 50th birthday.

As the 300 uniformed guards marched into the hall they were met by a detail of police. Acting in accordance with Mayor F. H. LaGuardia's instructions, the police ordered the bundsmen to doff their Sam Browne belts and swastika arm bands.

The troopers grumbled but complied. They reformed their lines and marched up to the platform to give a "Heil" to their "Fuehrer," Fritz Kuhn.

Then the firemen appeared and decided that the troopers constituted a fire hazard because they were blocking the aisles. So they had to about-face and march out.

In the hall was an audience of 1,000 and a squad of 150 detectives. Outside were 300 uniformed police.

COLUMBUS, April 21—The attorney general will be asked to conduct a sweeping investigation of alleged illegal use of highway maintenance funds in Clark county during the administration of Former Gov. Martin L. Davey, Highway Director Robert S. Beightler announced today.

The director's action was prompted by a report submitted by Noah Truax, division engineer, which charged that state funds were used to obtain votes by hiring an excessive number of workers previous to the primary campaign last year.

Varied Uses Cited

The report further charged that highway funds and labor were used to improve properties of lodges, night clubs, private cemeteries, schools, and homes of private individuals.

"As far as the abuse of maintenance funds is concerned, this is the worst case that has come to my attention," said Beightler. "We are going to get to the bottom of it."

PROFESSOR ENDS 20 YEAR SEARCH FOR HAIRY FLEA

FOREST GROVE, Ore., April 21 —Professor C. Anderson Hubbard of Pacific university was jubilant today. He has found the object of an exhaustive 20-year search—a male, hairy, oval-bodied flea.

The specimen is so unusual a new classification of the flea family will have to be made to accommodate it.

Twenty years of tireless search over half a dozen states and untold hours of microscopic examinations was climaxed when Dr. Hubbard pulled his hirsute flea from the back of a mountain beaver.

The search began in 1919 when the professor found a female flea on a beaver and could find no classification of the insect. He concluded that it was new to science and since then has found many female fleas of the same type but none of the bearded males.

Dr. Karl Jordan, internationally known authority on fleas and curator of the British museum in Hertz, England, praised his American colleague for his discovery.

Dr. Jordan announced that the new species of flea would be named after its founder.

C. C. C. YOUTHS FIGHT ADVANCE OF DESTROYERS

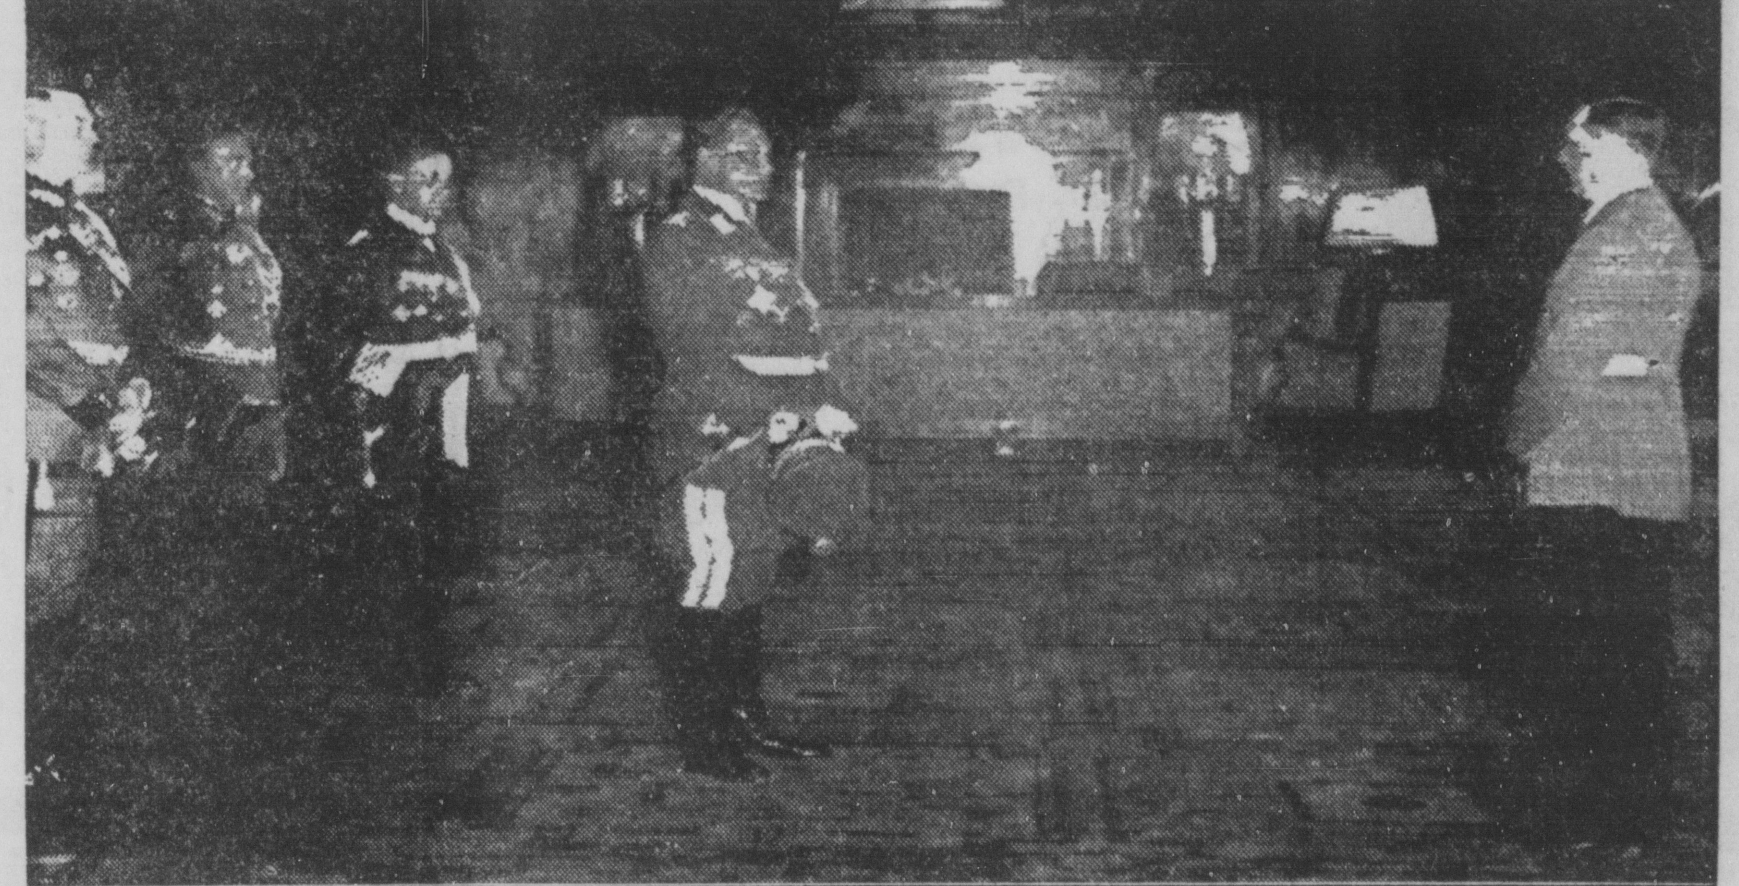

COALINGA, Cal., April 21 — All available C.C.C. enrollees were prepared today to move into central California and augment the army of farmers pitted in a frantic battle against countless millions of grasshoppers which threaten destruction of more than a million acres of bumper crops.

At the same time, two airplanes were chartered at Fresno to scatter sodium fluoride over the cotton fields northeast of Coalinga, first of the cultivated areas to be seriously threatened.

A survey disclosed the horde of brown insects was advancing on a 50-mile front, constituting a column 118 miles deep.

Farmers in one region spread a five-mile line of poison grain in the path of the oncoming horde.

Hitler To Use Answers To Query In Address To Reichstag

By H. R. Knickerbocker

PARIS, April 21—Nine little European nations felt the full force of Nazi Germany's "dynamic diplomacy" today as Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler turned to them to provide his answer to President Roosevelt's appeal for a quarter century of guaranteed peace.

Authoritative diplomatic sources disclosed that four Baltic, one Scandinavian and four Balkan countries have already been queried by the Fuehrer in the knowledge he will receive replies enabling him, in his speech to the Reichstag a week from today, to repudiate Roosevelt's universally acknowledged secretely welcomed intervention in Europe.

Hitler, in effect, is asking the small nations of Europe whether they are frightened of him. He plans, in time, to interrogate all the little countries that Roosevelt asked him to promise he would not attack. That any of these nations could conceivably reply affirmatively and thus offend (Continued on Page Ten)

BERGDOLL MAY REACH GOTHAM ON DEUTSCHLAND

NEW YORK, April 21—Grover C. Bergdoll, the notorious draft dodger whose wife recently announced he is prepared to return to America and "take his medicine," may be aboard the Deutschland scheduled to dock today, according to unverified reports.

Bergdoll has been reported missing from his home in a German suburb and this gave rise to reports he may have secretly embarked for America.

Should Bergdoll be seized by U. S. army men and interned in the nearest army prison.

NEW YORK, April 21—Arrival of the Hamburg-American liner Deutschland in port today will end the race of German vessels to beat the recently ordered imposition of countervailing duties of 25 percent on German imports which becomes effective tomorrow at midnight.

The Deutschland was the last of the 11 heavily laden vessels rushed to American shores from Germany. Officials of the Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd lines estimated that 24,000 tons of cargo had been discharged within the last few days. Three extra vessels were chartered by the Reich for the rush to beat the deadline and vessels normally in service to the Pacific coast were diverted to New York.

Lindy, Family Considering Permanent Home in U. S.

WASHINGTON, April 21—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh may end his European exile and take up permanent residence again in his native land, it was learned today.

Close friends of the flying colonel represented him as being eager to remain in the United States and to contribute his aviation knowledge and technical experience to the American government.

They said that when Lindbergh sought refuge with his family in England four years ago he doubted that he might ever return for more than an occasional brief visit, but that time has begun to heal the tragedy which drove him into exile.

Of late months, they said, he had begun to feel homesick.

His yearning has been given purpose by the continuing threat of war in Europe and the fear that the United States may suffer a vital weakness in its national defenses unless its air fighting strength is brought up to parity with Germany.

Wife, Children Sail

This belief was heightened by the sudden departure of his wife, Anne Morrow Lindbergh, and their two children, Jon, seven, and Land, two, from France on the liner Champlain. They will join Lindbergh in this country. Friends said, too, that the children's grandmother, Mrs. Dwight Morrow Lindbergh missed them sorely and often pleaded for their return.

It will be the first time that two-year-old Land, who was born in London, has seen his parents' homeland.

Lindbergh's present tour of active duty with the Army Air Corps was described as a "trial period" in determining the possibility of his ending his exile abroad.

It was said that his desire for (Continued on Page Ten)

CHICAGO POLICE SCORE OHIO ANS FOR TWO DEATHS

CHICAGO, April 21—Blame for the slaying of two Springfield, O., peace officers and the subsequent electrocution of three men today rested on the shoulders of the Ohio parole division because it allegedly refused to send to Chicago for one of the killers two years ago.

That charge was made in Chicago by T. P. Sullivan, head of the Illinois department of criminal investigation, who produced telegrams showing the state of Ohio declined to return Harry Chapman, 37, for parole violation five months before the slaying of the officers.

Chapman, along with Harry and Henry Dingleline, Springfield, O., father and son, were electrocuted in Ohio penitentiary in Columbus Wednesday night for killing the officers following a payroll robbery.

Sullivan said Chapman was arrested in Chicago April 1, 1937, as a holdup suspect. He was on parole from Ohio after serving a term for bank robbery. Sullivan asserted Ohio authorities were three notified before he received the following wire from L. L. Farris, then chief of the parole division:

"Inexpedient to claim Harry Chapman, alias Harry Wesley on information received and lack of funds. His release is authorized."

Sullivan commented:

"The slaying of the two officers and the executions could have been prevented had Ohio returned Chapman to the penitentiary, where he belonged."

SUITOR SHOTS WOMAN, WOUNDS SELF WITH GUN

CINCINNATI, April 21—Edgar Ficus, 39, of nearby Amelia, who police reported shot and wounded a 24-year-old married woman then turned the gun on himself, today was said to be near death in a hospital here.

The woman, Mrs. Gladys Wheatley, was wounded in left arm and the right index finger. Authorities said Mrs. Wheatley, who had been separated from her husband for two years, had been "keeping company" with Ficus.

According to sheriff's deputies, Ficus became angry when Mrs. Wheatley reportedly told him she and her husband had become reconciled. They said the man, driving an auto, overtook Mrs. Wheatley's car and fired one shot at her. When she stopped the car, he wounded her a second time, it was reported.

CANADIANS HUNT STRANGE CRAFT SEEN OFF COAST

HALIFAX, N. S., April 21 —While a $185,000 submarine net was reported in official circles being stretched across the entrance to Halifax harbor, two mine sweepers and planes of the Royal Canadian navy and the mounted police were scouring the seas today for a mysterious under-sea boat reported sighted along the Nova Scotia coast.

The submarine net, reportedly being stretched by the Royal Canadian navy from Purcell's cove to McNab's island, would halt any submarine attempting to enter the important Canadian harbor, according to navy officials.

As the mine sweepers Fundy and Gaspe headed out to sea, the destroyers Skeena and Saguenay were provisioned and refueled for similar duty.

At least four reports of the submarine's presence in Canadian waters have been received. The crew of a freighter reported sighting the craft off the Cape Breton coast. Similar reports were received from the western shore near Lockport. The crew of the steamer Cornerbrook also made a report. The fourth report was received from the captain of a pilot boat off Chebucto island.

Defense Minister Ian MacKenzie told the House of Commons the best opinion of naval officials was that the vessel in question was not a submarine but that all necessary precautions were nevertheless being taken.

War Must Affect Balkans To Make Agreement Binding London Hears

LONDON, April 21—Negotiations which may result in a mighty Anglo-French-Soviet Russian triple entente designed to halt European aggression were pursued actively today, but British efforts to form a "stop Hitler" front ran into difficulties on two other sectors.

Efforts to bring Soviet Russia seemingly approached realization after the Soviet government forwarded a series of proposals to London dealing with technical and geographic matters.

The suggestions from Moscow were in response to an Anglo-French offer to guarantee Russia's independence in exchange for full Soviet cooperation with the anti-aggression bloc.

The campaign of the Anglo-French entente to prevent further aggression by Germany or Italy received a set-back, however, with revelation that Turkey has insisted on an important reservation in her agreements with Great Britain and France.

Under this reservation Turkey will become involved reciprocally in a European conflict on the side of Britain and France only in the event of a war directly affecting the Balkans or the eastern Mediterranean.

Agreement Reported

Several days ago it was revealed that Britain and Turkey had concluded an agreement providing for military reciprocity. Turkey also agreed to keep the Dardanelles open to British and French warships.

The Turkish reservations, however, would bar that nation from taking mandatory military action in the event, for example, of a German move against Poland.

A second stumbling bloc was noted in the person of Grigore Gafencu, Rumanian foreign minister, who has been visiting Berlin and engaging in long, earnest talks with German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop.

Although the Anglo-French military guarantees cover Rumania, British authorities expressed themselves as frankly worried over the attitude Gafencu will adopt when he arrives in London Sunday for further consultations. He is scheduled to talk over all the implications arising from the British pledge to Rumania.

Anxiety over his position arose from the fact that he told an interviewer in Berlin:

"No two-sided agreement will arise from the British guarantee to Rumania. My country has no (Continued on Page Ten)"

S., April 21 — While a $185,000 submarine net was reported in official circles being stretched across the entrance to Halifax harbor, two mine sweepers and planes of the Royal Canadian navy and the mounted police were scouring the seas today for a mysterious undersea boat reported sighted along the Nova Scotia coast.

The submarine net, reportedly being stretched by the Royal Canadian navy from Purcell's cove to McNab's island, would halt any submarine attempting to enter the important Canadian harbor, according to navy officials.

As the mine sweepers Fundy and Gaspe headed out to sea, the destroyers Skeena and Saguenay were provisioned and refueled for similar duty.

At least four reports of the submarine's presence in Canadian waters have been received. The crew of a freighter reported sighting the craft off the Cape Breton coast. Similar reports were received from the western shore near Lockport. The crew of the steamer Cornerbrook also made a report. The fourth report was received from the captain of a pilot boat off Chebucto island.

Defense Minister Ian Mackenzie told the House of Commons the best opinion of naval officials was that the vessel in question was not a submarine but that all necessary precautions were nevertheless being taken.

TURKS PROMISE TROUBLE

War Must Affect Balkans To Make Agreement Binding, London Hears

LONDON, April 21—Negotiations which may result in a mighty Anglo-French-Soviet Russian triple entente designed to halt European aggression were pursued actively today, but British efforts to form a "stop Hitler" front ran into difficulties on two other sectors.

Efforts to bring Soviet Russia seemingly approached realization after the Soviet government forwarded a series of proposals to London dealing with technical and geographic matters.

The suggestions from Moscow were in response to an Anglo-French offer to guarantee Russia's independence in exchange for full Soviet cooperation with the anti-aggression bloc.

The campaign of the Anglo-French entente to prevent further aggression by Germany or Italy received a set-back, however, with revelation that Turkey has insisted on an important reservation in her agreements with Great Britain and France.

Under this reservation Turkey will become involved reciprocally in a European conflict on the side of Britain and France only in the event of a war directly affecting the Balkans or the eastern Mediterranean.

Agreement Reported

Several days ago it was revealed that Britain and Turkey had concluded an agreement providing for military reciprocity. Turkey also agreed to keep the Dardanelles open to British and French warships.

The Turkish reservations, however, would bar that nation from taking mandatory military action in the event, for example, of a German move against Poland.

A second stumbling bloc was noted in the person of Grigore Gafencu, Rumanian foreign minister, who has been visiting Berlin and engaging in long, earnest talks with German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop.

Although the Anglo-French military guarantees cover Rumania, British authorities expressed themselves as frankly worried over the attitude Gafencu will adopt when he arrives in London Sunday for further consultations. He is scheduled to talk over all the implications arising from the British pledge to Rumania.

Anxiety over his position arose from the fact that he told an interviewer in Berlin: "No two-sided agreement will arise from the British guarantee to Rumania. My country has no (Continued on Page Ten)"

RELIEF ACTION TO BE DELAYED BY RURAL BLOC

Attempt To Be Aid Job In

Hands Fought

"MONOPOLY" IS CHARGED

Funds For College Building
Programs Bring Debate
In Legislature

COLUMBUS, April 21 — Attempts of the joint relief committee to place administration of relief with county welfare boards threatened today to throw the legislature into a turmoil.

With the relief bill to be made part of the biennial appropriation measure and calling for the expenditure of $18,500,000 is appeared that if the county welfare boards clause receives the approval of the committee quick action on the entire measure would be blocked by rural members of the house.

Rural members of the last legislature fought administration of relief by such boards with the claim that the practice set up a monopoly for professional social workers.

Their efforts were successful and relief was administered for two years by a state welfare director.

Two Members Opposed

Two members of the present relief committee expressed their opposition to taking local relief administration out of the hands of township trustees and placing it with the county commissioners, who could set up welfare boards if they so desired.

Rep. L. H. Myers (R-Allen) said he would redraft the temporary relief measure over the weekend and change it to give township trustees recognition by the local relief directors in order that the trustees could appoint investigators. Other committee members may insist on the boards remaining in the bill, however.

He said he expected to have the redraft completed by Monday or Tuesday. Myers is chairman in charge of the administrative section of the bill.

Meanwhile, the senate was embroiled in an argument over the bill of Sen. Robert A. Pollock (R-Canton) to raise funds for university building improvements by increasing student fees.

Republican State Chairman Ed D. Schorr threw his support to the measure because, he said, "it is not politics, it is good government."

Schorr was questioned after senators reported that he had telephoned them and asked them to change their vote from "no" to "yes" when a motion was made for reconsideration.

The bill was defeated last Tuesday, 12-20, when opponents claimed it taxed the students and their parents.

Buildings Needed

Schorr declared the bill was designed to enable universities to erect buildings "which they need very badly." He added that university officials had agreed not to press for state funds for additions and betterments if the bill were approved.

The motion to reconsider the bill was left pending and it probably will come up for a vote early next week.

Action probably will be taken by the conference committee on the tax commission reorganization bill Monday, Senate Majority Leader Frank E. Whittemore said.

The measure was stymied when

To Wed Lord's Son

OFF to England, there to wed James Stanley Stuart Findlay, son of Lord and Lady Findlay, is Mrs. Jean Morrison McDonald, divorced wife of William McDonald, Jr., chief pilot for Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, head of the Chinese government.

the house and senate refused to agree on amendments.

House amendments to the parole board reorganization bill will be taken up Monday also, Whittemore said.

The senate passed and sent to the governor a bill setting up a six-member commission to study the need for new state office buildings and approved three bills requiring local subdivisions to use not less than 20 percent of their gasoline tax and drivers' license fees for highway construction, repair and maintenance.

Present law requires that not more than 50 percent be used for the purpose. The bill was introduced by Sen. D. A. Liggitt (R-Belle Center).

Traffic Code Favored

A bill of Rep. Donald D. Canfield (R-Wood) setting up a uniform traffic code for the state passed the house, 98 to 12. It goes to the senate.

Approved by the house, 84 to 38, a bill authorizing municipalities to form associations and to contribute dues for expenses ran into a snag when the Democratic minority supported a reconsideration motion and gained enough Republican votes to swing it.

Rep. A. Lee Fair (R-Holmes) attacked the bill as setting up "a municipal lobby." The reconsideration motion carried, 69 to 33, and was left pending.

The Cincinnati faction of the house also tried to block the Canfield uniform traffic law bill with a reconsideration motion, but was unsuccessful.

The measure would allow municipalities to retain authority to enforce traffic regulations providing proper street signs designating the regulation were erected. Present speed limits are not affected by the measure.

A bill to permit sportsmen's organizations to bar free hunting in various areas and allow the propagation and shooting of pheasants went down to defeat in the house, 51-61.

The house approved a bill requiring all school districts to maintain a local three-mill tax levy in order to participate in the school foundation program.

Snails have been known to go for as long as five years without food.

WASHINGTON C. H., April 21 — A strike of pupils at Madison centralized school, Madison Mills, was ended Thursday after pupils had paraded the school grounds for two hours bearing banners.

The pupils went on strike in protest against disciplinary measures of Principal Dwight Heath, who took privileges from two or three pupils. The banners said "Heath and Wagner Unfair to Pupils."

Superintendent Ray Wagner finally induced leaders to confer with him. The strike was ended with an understanding there would be no punishment of the offenders.

FRANCIS WARNS RUNNING DOGS ENDANGER GAME

Clarence Francis, county game officer, appealed to Pickaway county sportsmen Friday to use extreme caution in training their dogs, especially night dogs, at this season of the year.

He explained that running dogs at this time takes a toll of young game. A large raccoon, bearing young, was found dead this week in a Pickaway township woods, Mr. Francis said.

"Hunters are permitted to train their dogs under the law but they should realize running game at this season means less sport this fall," Francis said. "Sportsmen must have permission of landowners to run dogs on their property. I have had several complaints recently about trespassers."

ROBERT MONTGOMERY

Handsome Robert Montgomery will pull a dramatic "about face" and change from a serious to a light comedy role in his second guest appearance in as many weeks on the "Silver Theatre" over the WABC-Columbia network, Sunday, April 23, at 6 p. m.

Originally Montgomery was scheduled for a two-weeks' engagement in a heavy, psychological drama entitled "Expert Opinion". However, at the end of the first episode last Sunday, Director Conrad Nagel and the star agreed that the play had reached such a logical point for a conclusion that a second chapter seemed inadvisable.

Thereon Nagel suggested that for his second week, Montgomery change to a light, happy-go-lucky role, typical of his early days in the movies and also of his latest screen vehicle "Fast and Loose". For this reason, a new one-act drama has been written for the guest star, and his fans will have the opportunity to compare the two sides of Montgomery's dual dramatic personality.

Lewis Stone portrays Judge Hardy; Mickey Rooney is again the irrepressible son, Andy; Fay Holden appears as Mrs. Hardy; Cecilia Parker is the daughter, Marian; Para Haden is the maiden Aunt Milly; and Ann Rutherford enacts the role of Mickey's Carvel girl friend, Polly Benedict. Don Castle is the admirer of Cecilia.

New in the cast are Virginia

Grey, appearing as a cabaret glamour girl who attracts Mickey; Minor Watson as an admirer of Aunt Milly; William Orr as Mickey's rival for Ann Rutherford; Halliwell Hobbes as the Hardy butler, and John King as a young millionaire.

AT THE GRAND

With just one 10-second appearance before a movie camera, 10-months-old "Sandy" established herself as Hollywood's champion scene stealer.

That word comes straight from the ex-champ, Mischa Auer. Mischa was the victim of young "Sandy's" polite banditry in their first scene together for Universal's "East Side of Heaven," opening Sunday at the Grand theatre.

In the scene which brings "Sandy" before the cameras for the first time, Bing Crosby, who co-stars with Joan Blondell in the picture, carries him into a small bedroom where Auer is studying some astrological charts.

Placing the baby on the bed with Mischa, Bing says, "I've got a little surprise for you." Auer keeps right on studying his charts while "Sandy" gurgles and proceeds to steal the scene right then. "Why did I ever get myself roped into this picture?" Auer is said to have wailed when the scene was finished. "My reputation will be ruined. How can I steal a scene with youngster like that around."

4-H CLUB WORK PROGRESSING IN RURAL DISTRICT

Units Being Perfected By County Agent And His
Assistant

GIRLS MEET IN MAY

Seven Boys' Groups Ready
To Begin Operation;
Others Follow

Organization of 4-H clubs throughout Pickaway county for Spring and Summer activities is progressing rapidly.

Seven boys' clubs have been organized to date, approximately half of the number to be set up this year. Organization of girls' clubs will be conducted in May.

F. K. Blair, county agent, and his assistant C. E. Blakeslee, hope to have about 40 clubs in the county this year. Last year there were 27 clubs with a membership of 450 boys and girls. Eighty-seven percent of the members of the clubs completed their various projects.

Last year some of the clubs were large. Smaller clubs are more desirable, the officials said, and permit more individual work with the members.

Boys' clubs have been organized to date at Duvall, Williamsport and Tarleton, and in Jackson, Salt-creek township, Scioto township and Walnut township. Since new members are joining steadily enrollment figures to date cannot be set up.

Organization meetings for two additional clubs are scheduled for early next week. Darbyville boys will meet Monday at 8 p. m. in the school building to organize.

Monroe township boys will meet Tuesday at 8 p. m. in the school to organize.

Meetings of three clubs previously organized are scheduled for next week. Scioto township boys will meet Tuesday evening in the school. If weather conditions permit the club will hold a weiner roast in the C. V. Neal woods.

Williamsport boys will meet
Wednesday at 8 p. m. in the home of Dale Smith. Walnut boys will meet Friday at 8 p. m. in the school building.

COUNTY ORATORY EVENT PLANNED FRIDAY EVENING

Residents from throughout the county will gather at Sulphur
Springs pavilion, Williamsport, Friday night, for the annual oratorical contest of the county schools. The program will start at 8 o'clock.

In addition to the orations a musical program will be presented by the Williamsport school orchestra and pupils of various county schools. Judging will be done by members of the department of speech of Ohio State university.

DOUGLAS HUGHES STONE

THE possibility of two associate justices of the Supreme Court facing each other as standard bearers in the 1940 presidential election is suggested by the talk in Washington's high political circles of Justice William O. Douglas and Justice Harlan F. Stone as presidential possibilities. Douglas has been only recently appointed to the nation's highest court while Stone has served as justice 14 years. Both are known as liberals. Douglas is seen as a possible Democratic compromise candidate and Stone might fill the same role on the Republican side. The last Supreme Court justice to resign to run for president is Charles Evans Hughes, now chief justice. Hughes resigned to accept the 1916 Republican nomination and was beaten by President Woodrow Wilson.

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(The International Uniform
Lesson on the above topic for April 23 is Acts 15:1-35; Galatians
2:1-10, the Golden Text being Galatians 2:16, "A man is not justified by the works of the law,
but by the faith of Jesus Christ.")

By Newman Campbell
IT IS AN odd thing, but people, even the best of them, and those banded together by the finest of bonds, cannot always agree. And so it was in the early days of the Christian church, when men were so eager to tell people the beautiful story of the Savior and his life, death and resurrection, that they disagreed on some matters.

And one thing they argued about was whether Gentiles, when converted and baptized, should be made to become Jews by observing all the old Mosaic laws and customs. Now, you remember that Peter, Paul and Barnabas had had experiences that made them feel that God meant the gospel to be preached both to Jew and Gentile alike, and they felt very strongly on the point.

On the other hand, the Pharisees and those like them were just as sure that only by becoming Jews in all but name could the Gentiles be admitted to the church.

Paul and Barnabas had a good deal of discussion with the other members of the church over this matter, and the others finally decided that these two should go to Jerusalem and ask the apostles and elders about it. So to Jerusalem they went, and after they had been received at the church and had told all the things that "God had done with them," certain Pharisees rose and expressed their conviction that Christians must be as Jews, and there was a great deal of discussion and disagreement.

Then Peter rose and told of his experience with the Centurion, Cornelius, and about his vision of the food let down from heaven and God's voice telling him he must not call unclean that which God had sanctified.

"And God, which knoweth their (the Gentiles' hearts," Peter said, "bare them witness, giving them the Holy Ghost, even as He did unto us; and put no difference between us and them, purifying
their hearts by faith."

After that the multitude was silent and listened to Paul and Barnabas, who declared what miracles and wonders God had wrought among the Gentiles.

Then James, the brother of Jesus, rose and talked. He had great influence among the Christians, as you may well imagine.
He said it was his judgment that the Gentiles need not keep all the laws of the Jews, but that if they refrained from eating meat that was customarily offered to idols,
from blood and from anything that had been strangled, that would be all that was necessary.

Paul willingly agreed to this, and so the matter was settled. Letters were written to the Gentile Christians at Antioch, Syria and Cilicia telling them the verdict.

So Paul and Barnabas went back to Antioch well pleased.
Judas and Silas were sent to tell the Gentile brethren the same things by words of mouth.

Paul showed his wisdom in accepting the decision of the leader of the church in Jerusalem. He was a strong man, firm in his convictions and ready to fight or suffer for them, or he would not have turned from persecution of Christians to working with and leading them. He was a natural leader, and it could not have been easy
for him to have given up his own way, but when it meant a slight sacrifice for the good of all, he was willing to compromise, just as we all must do when insistence means a fight which can leave only hatred and bitter feelings.

To show his firm stand on the matter of Gentiles being allowed to become Christians without also being forced to obey the Mosaic law in its entirety, Paul says in his letter to Galatians, in Chapter 2, "Then 14 years after I went up again to Jerusalem and took Titus with me."

Now Titus was a Greek, and so was one of the Gentiles whose case was in dispute. Titus, to Paul, was living proof that God would accept Gentiles into His service, just as they were.

4-H CLUB WORK PROGRESSING IN RURAL DISTRICT

Units Being Perfected By County Agent And His
Assistant

GIRLS MEET IN MAY

Seven Boys' Groups Ready
To Begin Operation;
Others Follow

Organization of 4-H clubs throughout Pickaway county for Spring and Summer activities is progressing rapidly.

Seven boys' clubs have been organized to date, approximately half of the number to be set up this year. Organization of girls' clubs will be conducted in May.

F. K. Blair, county agent, and his assistant C. E. Blakeslee, hope to have about 40 clubs in the county this year. Last year there were 27 clubs with a membership of 450 boys and girls. Eighty-seven percent of the members of the clubs completed their various projects.

Last year some of the clubs were large. Smaller clubs are more desirable, the officials said, and permit more individual work with the members.

Boys' clubs have been organized to date at Duval, Williamsport and Tarleton, and in Jackson, Salt-creek township, Scioto township and Walnut township. Since new members are joining steadily enrollment figures to date cannot be set up.

Organization meetings for two additional clubs are scheduled for early next week. Darbyville boys will meet Monday at 8 p. m. in the school building to organize.

Monroe township boys will meet Tuesday at 8 p. m. in the school to organize.

Meetings of three clubs previously organized are scheduled for next week. Scioto township boys will meet Tuesday evening in the school. If weather conditions permit the club will hold a weiner roast in the C. V. Neal woods.

Williamsport boys will meet Wednesday at 8 p. m. in the home of Dale Smith. Walnut boys will meet Friday at 8 p. m. in the school building.

COUNTY ORATORY EVENT PLANNED FRIDAY EVENING

Residents from throughout the county will gather at Sulphur Springs pavilion, Williamsport, Friday night, for the annual oratorical contest of the county schools. The program will start at 8 o'clock.

In addition to the orations a musical program will be presented by the Williamsport school orchestra and pupils of various county schools. Judging will be done by members of the department of speech of Ohio State university.

Treasurer Receives Supply Of New Stamps For April 24 Sale

Sale of prepaid sales tax stamps for the week ending April 8 showed an increase of $95.26 in Pickaway county over the same week last year.

The sales this year amounted to $1,560.15. Last year they were $1,464.89. The figures are shown in a report released Friday by Don H. Ebright, state treasurer.

Sales to date this year amount to $18,935.08 as compared with $18,957.47 last year, a decrease of $22.39.

Other central Ohio counties reported the following figures for the April 8 week: Fairfield, 1938, $3,614.71; 1939, $4,416.32; Fayette, 1938, $1,450.20; 1939, $2,360.56; Hocking, 1938, $848.77; 1939, $1,246.76; Madison, 1938, $1,193.73; 1939, $1,267.75; Ross, 1938, $3,908.56; 1939, $3,764.12.

A supply of the new sales tax stamps to be used after May 1 was received this week by the county treasurer. The new stamps go on sale April 24. They are not to be used until after May 1 unless the vendor exhausts his supply of the old stamps.

Under provisions of a new law, the consumer's portion of the prepaid sales tax receipts issued after May 1 will be redeemable at three percent of the face value when presented in amounts of $100 or more.

CITY on the SANTA FE

The Snorting Iron Horse Out-races the Rattling Stage Coach! Town Laid Out in July, 1872, by A. A. Robinson, Chief Engineer of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad, and Known in its Wildest and Woolliest days as the Wickedest City in the West, Leaps into Lurid Life in "Dodge City," Spectacular Technicolor Motion Picture!

By HARRY LEE

"BEYOND Chicago, no law — beyond Dodge City, no God!" That is the way they put it back in the seventies, for hardly had the last spike been driven in that division of the Santa Fe — when a roaring cavalcade of bullwhackers, buffalo hunters, cowboys, Indians, covered wagon homeseekers, and desperadoes began to sweep into that crazy collection of tents and dugouts, which had been dignified by the name 'City' — Dodge City — to be exact. Dodge City — the devil's own!

The tellers of tall yarns have had their innings, but those who seek really authentic information can do no better than turn to "Dodge City," the book written by Robert Marr Wright, veteran of Indian fighting days — and published by the Eagle Press of Wichita in 1913.

"Dodge was in the very heart of the buffalo country," says Mr. Wright, "and hardly had the railroad reached it — long before a depot could be built — business began, and such a business! Dozens of cars a day were loaded with hides and meat, and dozens of carloads of grain, flour and provisions, arrived each day. The streets were lined with wagons from early morning to late at night!"

Mr. Wright, who owned a ranch near the site of the future Dodge City, relates that in the Spring of 1864, while he was away from home, it was attacked by a band of three hundred Indians. His sons, who were supplied with arms and ammunition, prepared to stand siege. After they had killed one Indian, and wounded a number of their ponies, the savages became more careful. They tried by every means within their power to get the boys to venture outside.

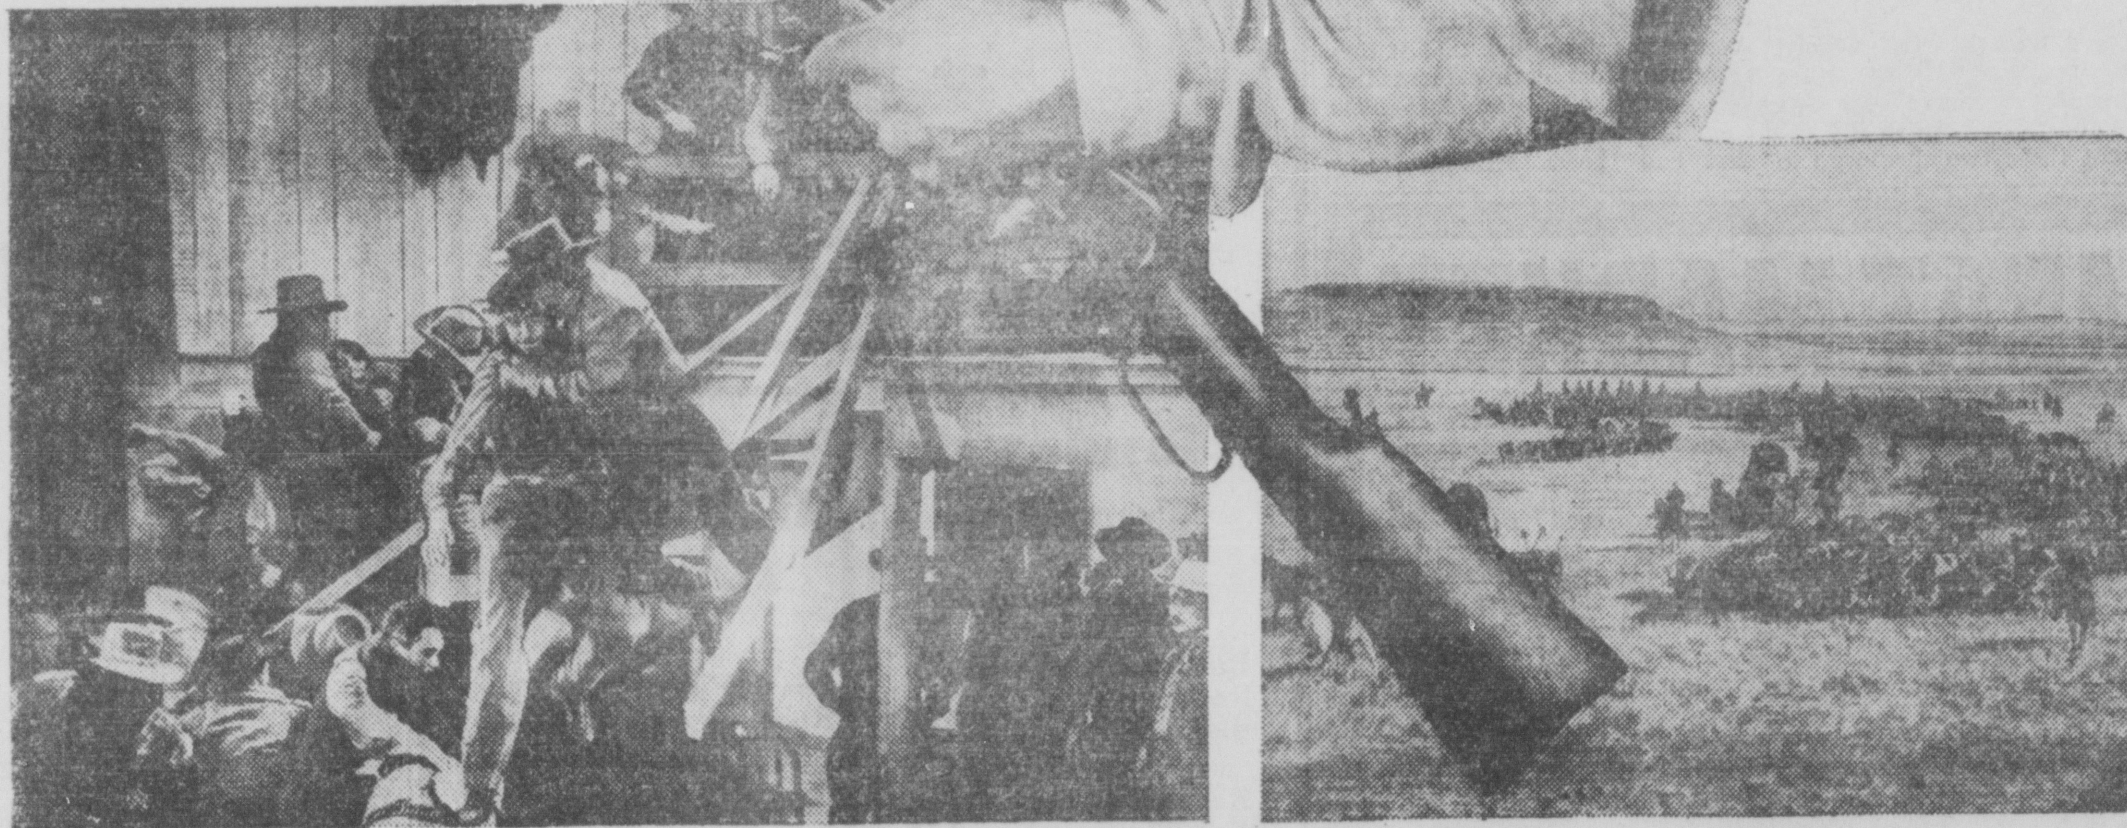

Mrs. Wright, at the beginning of the fight, had placed her two younger children on the floor and covered them with feather beds. She then knocked bits of chinking from between the logs kept a sharp lookout on the Indians, and loaded the guns as fast as the boys emptied them. After about seven hours, during which the wily Red Men made it hot for the besieged family, they got together, held a powwow, and rode off up the river.

New Army Posts

That was the year that the Government established a series of posts — of which Fort Dodge was one — along the trails, for the protection of travelers and covered wagon settlers, and for the quelling of Indian outbreaks. One of the routes that led to Fort Dodge was called the "Hornado de muerte" — meaning the journey of death.

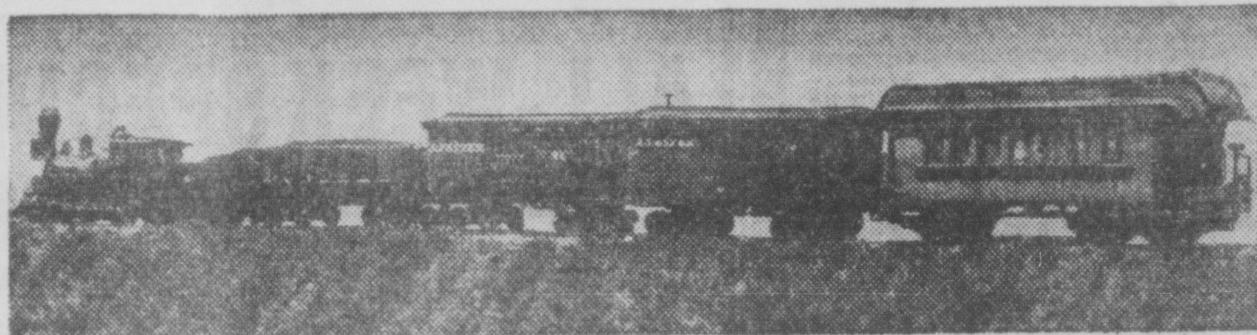

In his chapter on Indian fights, Mr. Wright says: "All the great expeditions against the Indians, horse thieves, and bad men were organized and fitted out at Fort Dodge or Dodge City, because they were at the end of the last, great frontier. Here civilization ended and lawlessness began. This gave rise, says the writer, to the necessity for many notable men to come to Dodge — such as Generals Sherman, Sheridan, Hancock, Miles, Sully, Custer and many others — even including President Rutherford B. Hayes.

Dodge City was located five miles west of Fort Dodge, on the north bank of the Arkansas River, and named for Colonel Richard I. Dodge, commandant of the post, who headed the town company.

"During this period," continues Mr. Wright, "we were entirely without law and order, and the nearest place of justice was Hays City, ninety-five miles to the northwest. There we had to go to settle our differences, but, take it from me, most of these differences were settled on the spot by rifle or six-shooter!"

The absurdity of Hays City justice is illustrated by a murder trial over which the famous Irishman, Justice Joyce, presided. Two Irish section hands got into a fight which ended only when one killed the other with a spike. No one witnessed the deed, but in due time the man who had committed it, came in, gave himself up, told a plausible story, and to all appearances was abjectly penitent.

Citizens went out and investigated, and concluded that the spike had been used in self defense. When the culprit came up for trial, Justice Joyce asked him the usual question: "Are you guilty or not guilty?" "Guilty, yer honor!" "Shut yer d---d mouth!" shouted the Judge as if horrified at the possibility of a miscarriage of justice. Then, after an impressive silence he added in a matter-of-fact tone: "Discharged for want of evidence!" Regarding crime and punishment Mr. Wright has this to say, "Our first calaboose in Dodge City was a well fifteen feet deep, into which the drunks were let down and allowed to remain until they were sober. Sometimes there were several in it at once."

"Concerning the City a great deal has been said and written

THE END

Critics of Dodge

The following interesting sidelights on Dodge City are gleaned from an article published in the "Topeka Times" in 1878.

"During the year of 1873 we roughed it in the West. Our first stopping place was the famous Dodge City, at the time a perfect paradise for gamblers, cut-throats and girls. On our first visit the buildings in town were not buildings, but tents and dug-outs. Everyone in town, nearly, sold whiskey or kept a restaurant, perhaps both. The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad was just then working its way up the low-banked Arkansas, and Dodge was the frontier town."

"Its growth was rapid. In a month from the time the railroad was completed to its borders, the place began to look like a city. Frame houses one story high, sprang up. Dodge became noted as headquarters for the buffalo hunters. These men carried a pair of Colt revolvers in their belts, wore their pants in their boots, and when they died, did so, generally with their boots on."

"We were down there again last week, and were surprised at the change in the city. It was built up wonderfully, has a fine courthouse, church, good schools, large business blocks, a good hall, and two live newspapers."

In 1883 the local paper noted: "For the first time in its existence Dodge had, last Sunday, the semblance of Sabbath . . . All business houses and saloons, dance halls and gambling dens were closed."

Famous Townsmen

Among the famous citizens of Dodge City was the quiet and unassuming farmer, Bill Tilghman. He was on hand when the site for the town was first surveyed and was marshal for three years. Later, as Sheriff of Ford County — of which Dodge is the largest town — he was instrumental in putting many of the bad men where they belonged. Another celebrated Sheriff was "Bat" Masterson, who later came East and became a sports writer for the old New York Telegram. He died in 1921.

Eddie Foy, later famous all over the world as the father of the seven little Foyes — made one of his first vaudeville appearances in Dodge City before an audience that misunderstood one of his jokes and pitched him into the river. He was so good-natured about it that the citizens took him out of the water and into their hearts. Foy was their favorite entertainer forever after.

And now Warner Bros. recreate the spectacular scenes of the making and remaking of Dodge City and the breathtaking melodrama is photographed in Technicolor. Errol Flynn — soldier of fortune on his own — is starred as the daring young adventurer who enters the town as the leader of a cavalcade of covered wagons and cattle from Texas — and runs into bad men and good. He, too, like Bill Tilghman and "Bat" Masterson, becomes Sheriff — with hair-raising results. With Errol Flynn is featured the lovely Olivia de Havilland, as a covered wagon girl. Heading the cast of thousands are Ann Sheridan, Bruce Cabot, Frank McHugh, Alan Hale, Henry Travers, Victor Jory and William Lundgren. The lavish production was directed by Michael Curtiz.

CIVIC AND LABOR BODIES ASSAIL CANAL PROGRAM

Chillicotheans Meet Thursday To Start Campaign Against Ashtabula System

ENGINEERS ATTACK PLAN
Diversion Of Shipping From Rails Alleged If Barge Project Begins

CHILLICOTHE, April 21—Representatives of Chillicothe civic bodies and labor union groups met Thursday night and inaugurated a campaign against the proposed construction by the government of a $207,257,000 Lake Erie-Ohio river barge canal from near Ashtabula to near Pittsburgh.

The meeting was called by the Chillicothe division of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. O. C. Cavins, secretary of the organization, was chairman of the meeting. Mr. Cavins was instructed to send a telegram of protest to the congressional committee now conducting hearings on the canal plan. Groups represented and individuals were urged to send telegrams of protest.

It is contended the canal would cause far-flung economic disaster by diversion of shipping from rail carriers. In addition it is contended taxation increases might accrue as a result of the canal construction.

The proposed canal would extend from the juncture of the Ohio and Beaver rivers to the Mahoning river, then to Warren and Youngstown and via a 200 foot width ditch to Lake Erie, 10 miles west of Ashtabula. The course is 102 miles long and would require seven years to build.

It was pointed out the canal would be constructed by the government from tax funds accumulated from over the nation but the ultimate cost of maintenance would be assessed against Ohio citizens.

UNUSUAL BLAZE TRAGEDY KILLS SECOND CHILD

COLUMBUS, April 21—An unusual fire that previously had taken the life of a younger sister today was blamed for the death of Jennie Lynn Fullerton, 12, of Columbus, who died last night in a hospital from burns suffered a month ago.

Seven-year-old Ann Fullerton succumbed a few hours after she had attempted save Jennie's life when the latter's dancing costume caught fire in their home. Jennie's dress was ignited while she was lighting a gas stove. The younger child was burned fatally when her clothing caught as she threw her arms about her sister in an effort to smother the blaze.

FAIRFIELD MAN WINS SUPPORT FOR MEASURE

COLUMBUS, April 21—The bill of Rep. Albert F. Stokes (R-Fairfield) which would permit Christian Science practitioners to charge fees for their services had received the approval of the house judiciary committee today. It was recommended for passage by the house. The bill has been before previous legislature, but has not succeeded in reaching the floor of either house for a vote.

SNYDER SEEKS $15,000 TO GAIN RELEASE ON BAIL

LOS ANGELES, April 21—Martin Moses Snyder, who faces a lengthy prison term for his pistol assault on Myrl Alderman, husband of Ruth Etting, Snyder's former wife, was trying hard today to raise $15,000 for bail purposes.

Snyder appealed the verdict finding him guilty of assault, but has been in the county jail pending the appeal, unable to raise bail, first set at $50,000, then reduced to $25,000, and finally to $15,000.

The $15,000 figure was set yesterday by Judge Thomas Ambrose, who heard the trial, on request of Snyder's counsel, Jerry Giesler. Snyder, familiarly known in Chicago and New York as "the Gimp," was found guilty of shooting and wounding Alderman last Winter in Hollywood when he went to Alderman's home in an attempt to persuade Miss Etting to give Alderman up and return to him.

CIVIC AND LABOR BODIES ASSAIL CANAL PROGRAM

Chillicotheans Meet Thursday To Start Campaign Against Ashtabula System

ENGINEERS ATTACK PLAN
 Diversion Of Shipping From Rails Alleged If Barge Project Begins

CHILLICOTHE, April 21—Representatives of Chillicothe civic bodies and labor union groups met Thursday night and inaugurated a campaign against the proposed construction by the government of a $207,257,000 Lake Erie-Ohio river barge canal from near Ashtabula to near Pittsburgh.

The meeting was called by the Chillicothe division of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. O. C. Cavins, secretary of the organization, was chairman of the meeting. Mr. Cavins was instructed to send a telegram of protest to the congressional committee now conducting hearings on the canal plan. Groups represented and individuals were urged to send telegrams of protest.

It is contended the canal would cause far-flung economic disaster by diversion of shipping from rail carriers. In addition it is contended taxation increases might accrue as a result of the canal construction.

The proposed canal would extend from the juncture of the Ohio and Beaver rivers to the Mahoning river, then to Warren and Youngstown and via a 200 foot width ditch to Lake Erie, 10 miles west of Ashtabula. The course is 102 miles long and would require seven years to build.

It was pointed out the canal would be constructed by the government from tax funds accumulated from over the nation but the ultimate cost of maintenance would be assessed against Ohio citizens.

UNUSUAL BLAZE TRAGEDY KILLS SECOND CHILD

COLUMBUS, April 21—An unusual fire that previously had taken the life of a younger sister today was blamed for the death of Jennie Lynn Fullerton, 12, of Columbus, who died last night in a hospital from burns suffered a month ago.

Seven-year-old Ann Fullerton succumbed a few hours after she had attempted save Jennie's life when the latter's dancing costume caught fire in their home. Jennie's dress was ignited while she was lighting a gas stove. The younger child was burned fatally when her clothing caught as she threw her arms about her sister in an effort to smother the blaze.

EX-POSTMASTER SLASHES SELF WITH PENKNIFE

WASHINGTON C. H., April 21—Homer Emery, 53, former postmaster of Bloomsburg and former school principal at Yatesville, was removed to a Columbus hospital, Thursday, after he is alleged to have slashed himself several times with a penknife. He was found along a highway near Bloomsburg. He was weak from the loss of blood and exposure.

Sheriff W. H. Icenhower said he had been seeking Emery for two days. The sheriff said Emery was wanted on charges of having issued bad checks. Warrants were issued in Washington C. H. and London.

SNYDER SEEKS $15,000 TO GAIN RELEASE ON BAIL

LOS ANGELES, April 21—Martin Moses Snyder, who faces a lengthy prison term for his pistol assault on Myrl Alderman, husband of Ruth Etting, Snyder's former wife, was trying hard today to raise $15,000 for bail purposes.

Snyder appealed the verdict finding him guilty of assault, but has been in the county jail pending the appeal, unable to raise bail, first set at $50,000, then reduced to $25,000, and finally to $15,000.

OPEN LETTERS

TO CITY OFFICIALS

GENTLEMEN: Operation of the traffic light at Mill and Court streets has aided greatly in reducing speeding in that district, convincing proof that a three-way light at Court street and the Ringgold pike would aid the control of traffic there. After councilmen were unable to purchase a used three-way light some months ago they dropped all consideration of the proposition. Now is the time to revive the issue before the tourist season opens and Route 23 is jammed with traffic.

CIRCUITEER.

TO COUNTY FOLK

FRIENDS: The annual oratorical contest of the Pickaway schools will be conducted this evening in the centralized school in Williamsport. The event always pits the best orators of the various schools against each other for a trophy that is emblematic of championships. The event next year will be held in the school of tonight's winner. Charles Dreisbach won in 1938, thus Williamsport is the host for the 1939 event. An excellent musical program has been arranged to augment the various addresses, so that the orations do not become monotonous at any time. Each pupil will have a different subject. The event promises to be very interesting and should attract a capacity crowd. My suggestion is that all who wish to enjoy the program should appear in the Sulphur Springs pavilion early, or all the seats may be taken.

CIRCUITEER.

TO L. E. MILLER

DEAR SIR: Circleville folk hope you will be able to start a street improvement program soon. Some of the city's black top streets are in bad condition from Winter wear and from the recent heavy rains. Motorists realize it has been out of the question to do any patching in recent weeks due to weather conditions. They hope that when weather permits you will rush street and alley improvements as rapidly as possible. The rains have made some of the holes much deeper and larger.

CIRCUITEER.

TO MARY HAYS, RUTH CLARK

STUDENTS: Congratulations go to you this week for the honor bestowed on you by school authorities, but won by your respective abilities. Circleville is proud of you for being named as valedictorian and salutatorian, respectively, in the Circleville high school graduating class. Your grades have been high during all four years of your school work, both of you have participated in many school activities, and both of you are truly deserving of all honors that will be bestowed on you at the annual Commencement on June 2. Your achievements should prove to be a challenge to boys of the high school, who should not be content to see both of the highest available honors provided for the graduating class go to the fairer sex.

CIRCUITEER.

TO ROTARY CLUB

CIVIC LEADERS: The entire community joins in applauding your Easter seal sale and your card party and dance, sponsored for the benefit of Circleville, Pickaway county and Ohio crippled children. The projects required much work and the only regret I have is that so few members of the club were called on to do most of the work. But that is nearly always the case, it seems, when an organization attempts projects such as these. But thank goodness there are some civic leaders who will take time from their business to work for the benefit of those unfortunate who are not able to enjoy life in its fullest measure.

CIRCUITEER.

TO COUNCIL

MEMBERS: Circleville residents would like to know when you expect to start operation of the new disposal plant. They are told the plant has been ready for operation for some time but has never been accepted from the contractor or a date set to start it. Funds are now available for operating expenses. Residents realize that the quarterly collection is under the sewer rental system but still they dislike paying for a service that has not been received. If the plant is ready for operation, funds are available, and employees have been appointed. Why the delay?

CIRCUITEER.

TO FUN SEEKERS

FOLK: Mark up the date of May 17 to attend the Policeman's and Fireman's ball sponsored by the Kiwanis Club. This ball will have a three-fold purpose. The proceeds will be divided three ways. Kiwanians will use their share of the funds for aiding underprivileged children. Firemen will use the money they receive in their annual toy campaign at Christmas. The police department will use its share for new equipment needed in the department. These dances have been outstanding successes in other cities and there is no reason why Circleville should not make it an annual affair. The program will include a floor show and plenty of good music.

CIRCUITEER.

TO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

MEMBERS: Appointment of a committee to study ways of stimulating interest in home building in Circleville is a splendid idea. This city has a definite need for small homes and apartments. I believe one of your major objectives should be to encourage young folk to build and own their homes. A campaign should be started on the construction of homes in the lower price bracket, the payments on which would fit in the budget of the younger folk. If construction of one of these homes by the Chamber of Commerce will aid, then build one this Summer to show what can be done.

CIRCUITEER.

World At A Glance

When President Roosevelt the other day listed thirty-one countries that he said he wanted Hitler and Mussolini to promise to let alone for at least the next ten years, he overlooked one or two bets. If he had he could have scored 32 or 33. The same editions of the newspapers that published the text of the presidential appeal to Der Fuehrer and Il Duce also published dispatches that Iceland is jittery over what's regarded there as the threat of a German grab and that the republic of Andorra is worrying lest Italy make a swipe at it by way of Spain. To be sure, Iceland theoretically belongs to Denmark, and the White House message to Berlin and Rome did ask for an assurance that the Danes would be left in peace. Still, the Icelanders are semi-independent; they do their own legislating and are about as separate from the homeland as Ireland is separate from England. And the President included Ireland in his list, as a distinct entity. So why not Iceland, too?

I surmise that not many folks here know where or what Andorra is. Well, it's a little nation, approximately the size of a Texas county, and with 15,000 or 20,000 population, astraddle the Pyrenees, between France and Spain. Oh, it's small, but it's been a republic in its own right since the days of Charlemagne; he created it. It's

as much entitled to consideration as Liechtenstein, anyway, and the President mentioned Liechtenstein. I suspect that he didn't think of Andorra at all. If he had, he'd have had a complete list. It would have been longer, more imposing and perfectly accurate.

FASCIST AGENTS ACTIVE

The Icelanders complain that German agents are snooping around in their capital, Reykjavik, and their opinion is that Herr Hitler has an eye on their island. It is understandable that he may covet it. It isn't worth much for itself alone. Nevertheless it has fine fishing waters roundabout it. As a naval and aviation base it also would be exceedingly valuable to strike from in the direction of northern Scotland and in the direction of northeastern Canada likewise. And it's very conveniently accessible to Germany's Baltic and North Sea ports. German occupation of it would be a terrible nuisance to the British in time of war. Indeed, those waters were a great anxiety to the British during the world conflict.

Andorra hasn't Iceland's strategic importance. If Italy really is in control of Spain it's a menace to southern France, of course, but regardless of Andorra, France and Spain parallel one another most of the way from the Mediterranean to the Bay of Biscay. Andorra is just a little incident along the frontier. All the same, it was a troublesome little place while the Spanish civil war was raging. Enough Spanish rebels chipped into its affairs so that French civil guards took it more or less in hand, somewhat in violation of the independence willed to it by Charlemagne. Certainly it wouldn't want to be gobbled by an Italianized Spain. France wouldn't like it, either.

Iceland and Andorra aren't of much consequence, it's true. Yet isn't it a heck of a situation in which the destinies of such insignificant spots on the map are jeopardized by present conditions? And the President of the United States, sizing matters up, forgets them entirely? Surely they're as significant as Albania. Albania, though, already is water over the dam.

WORLD WAR OUTDONE

Truth is, the world war prospect is outdone.

Modern Opinions Of Arthritis Told

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

FROM Ypsilanti, Michigan, comes the request for an article on the cause of arthritis, and what to do for it. The writer's husband has arthritis and the doctor came and left some pills, but the druggist said that they were only meant to relieve pain.

Here is a human situation well enough. I feel sorry for the writer. It is a great trial to have a member of the family with arthritis. And I feel sorry for the doctor. And I feel sorry for the husband with arthritis. But I should like to tell the druggist that he might have something a good deal better to do than gossip about the prescriptions his doctors turn in. And I should also like to tell him that according to the Fifth Rheumatism Review, prepared for the American Rheumatism Association, about the most important thing that can be done for the arthritic patient is to relieve his pain.

Great Problem

Arthritis, or chronic rheumatism, whichever you want to call it, is in deed a great problem, even if considered numerically. It is estimated that every person aged 50 years or more can be shown to have some little arthritis, but only five per cent have symptoms. This would mean in the United States that about 24,000,000 have arthritis and about 1,200,000 have symptoms from it.

There are almost as many varieties of "arthritis" as there are patients. The form of arthritis mentioned in the statistics above comes in after 50. That is the commonest form and is likely to occur in the fingers or toes, wrists, ankles—in other words, the peripheral joints, although it can occur in the spine. We have written of this form of arthritis many times in this column and do not intend to devote much space to it now. Suffice it to say that it comes on in attacks, that attacks usually last about a year and that if the "patient" will be "patient," he may be assured he will get over his troubles.

He might as well be patient because there is nothing known to medical science that is certain to shorten the attack. This includes mineral water, treatment at resorts or springs, electricity, massage or manipulation, bee venom therapy, injections of medicine in the veins, vaccines, gold, sulphur, iontophoresis, artificially induced fever, chaulmoogra oil, diet, and many other things.

Four Methods

In treatment only four methods of treatment have been found to be of any value.

1). Rest. This is the most important. It may mean complete rest in bed, or rest in bed with brief daily periods of mild activity, or rest of the affected part with splints.

In prevention of this form of arthritis the element of rest is very important and should be emphasized. Many of these cases are due to occupational trauma—standing in one position, the regular jolting of one joint by a piece of machinery.

2). Heat. Plain hot applications, hot water or diathermy.

3). Relief of pain, with such medicines as aspirin or calcichine.

4). Psychotherapy. Making the patient resigned through an understanding of the nature of the disease.

In spite of the inspiration provided by his bride of a few months, Phil Parrish finds writing his first novel a tedious task. Phil and Eleanor, new to New York, where he is a reporter, live modestly in Greenwich Village. They had met on a small town newspaper. Eleanor had stopped writing when she had come to New York with Phil. She longed to do something to supplement their income, but Phil would not consider it. Phil introduces Eleanor to Kate Douglas, society editor of his paper. Kate needs a part-time assistant. Eleanor finally persuades Phil to let her take the job. When Eleanor gets the grips on the eve of a party, she induces Phil to go without her, much against his will. Eleanor accepts a few casual dates with Ed Hastings, a friend of the Parrishes, when Phil is called out of town for ten days. When he returns, Phil is furious. Phil is delighted when Eleanor announces she is going to become a mother. When the baby arrives, Phil is confident Eleanor's longing for a career is ended.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

WHEN THE door to her office opened hesitantly, Kate Douglas frowned. When she saw that it was Phil Parrish who stood there, she smiled quickly and said, "Come in, Phil. Sit down and I'll be with you as soon as I finish this item."

She tapped on the keys of her typewriter and, finishing the page, pulled it from the machine and added it to a stout pile of similar sheets on her desk. She swung around in her swivel chair and accepted the cigaret he held out to her.

"Too busy to visit?" he asked. "Busy," she answered, "but not too busy. I've been wanting to talk to you."

He didn't look at her. "I guess you'll be glad to have Nell back."

Kate inhaled deeply and blew the smoke out in a cloud that obscured a view of her eyes. She said: "That all depends."

"What do you mean?"

"I'm not sure I know how to say it, son. Eleanor is a very capable girl and I do need her, but I'm wondering . . . well, never mind. I hear you have some pictures of the baby. Got them with you?"

He grinned. Sure. When we've got ten kinds. I probably won't carry 'em around. The novelty hasn't worn off yet."

Proudly he offered her a fan of snapshots. "Taken when she was just two months old, last Tuesday," he said.

Kate looked at the little face lost in a sea of blankets. "I think she's beginning to look like you," she said, wishing she might have said the baby looked healthy and dimpled.

Phil gave her a glance that was properly incredulous and thoroughly pleased. "The doc says she'll gain when she's had a lot more food and plenty of sunlight."

"Of course she will. Lots of babies don't gain until they get accustomed to this unfamiliar world."

Phil's eyes darkened. "She cries a lot," he said unhappily. "But Nell thinks when we have a trained nurse who really knows how to take care of a baby that she'll put her on a routine."

"A trained nurse? Won't that be expensive?"

He made a great to-do of studying the burning paper of his cigaret. "Nell's sold me on the idea of using her salary for the nurse."

"Phil—how do you really feel about it?"

He shrugged his shoulders. "I'm old-fashioned, Kate. I think a mother knows best how to take care of her own baby, but I'm only a man and I'm not supposed to know about those things. Alas, I'm just a guy who's now in love with two women—Jessica and Nell. I want the baby to have the best there is—but I also want Nell to be happy. I guess she knows best."

"For a girl as young as she is, Eleanor has a lot of sense," Kate said, making a pencil correction on her copy. "If she were not to come back to work, do you think you could both manage on your salary and bring up the baby in that apartment?"

A copy boy came in and collected Kate's papers.

"When he went out, Phil said: 'Kate, I've got a swell idea. I haven't told Nell yet. That's what I came in to talk over with you. Fifty a week isn't much in New York, but there are a lot of places on Long Island where we could get a little house. Places where there's lots of sunshine and Nell could be outdoors with the baby. She saved money before the baby was born and most of it has been spent on the specialist, but there's a little left. Enough to move on.'"

"What about yourself? Rent and lights and food and gas and railroad fare wouldn't leave you much. And it's quite a trek in to the office. Wouldn't that be hard on you?"

"It wouldn't be for long. I'm going to get to work on the novel pretty soon. It doesn't matter about me, Kate."

"I can see it doesn't," she said with a smile.

He said: "Nell's coming down to see you tomorrow morning about starting to work again."

"And what is it you really want me to do?" she asked.

Phil caught his underlip in his teeth. "Whatever you think is right, Kate. You're older than Nell and you know more about these things than I do. I want her to be happy. Some women aren't happy when they're housekeepers. Other women . . . well, you'll know what to do."

"Phil, I need Eleanor. And, as you say, some women should do the thing they want to do. I'll have to think about it. I have to think of her as well as you—and the baby. Tell her not to come down in the morning. I'll stop by. I want to see the baby anyway."

His face brightened. "I'll trust you, Kate. And remember, I want you to consider Nell. Wait until you see Jessica. You'll see a big improvement in her."

Climbing the stairs to the Parrishes apartment, Kate prayed that she would see an improvement in the baby. But it was a pale little inanimate face that looked at her from a small crib in the dark bedroom.

Eleanor was excited. "Oh, Kate, just to look at your face is to recapture living!" she said, pouring coffee for her guest. "I've a whole program of budget stories laid out. I haven't written them because I wanted to get your reaction, but my fingers itch for the typewriter."

Kate stirred sugar in her coffee without taking her eyes from the girl's face. "You've printed the ink in your veins, Eleanor Parrish!"

Eleanor nodded happily. "I guess I have. It's been a wonderful experience having Jessica and I love every inch of her, but I love something else, too, and I'm lonely for it."

"Child, the world is full of women who've drowned themselves in printer's ink to forget that they haven't a morsel like Jessica to love."

Eleanor nodded impatiently. "I know. But if they were wise, they could have had both. I'm not going to let my career interfere with bringing up my baby. Please believe that."

"And now you are going to say that you aren't going to let Jessica interfere with your career?"

"You do believe that I love my baby, don't you? And that I should be what I am—a career woman?"

Kate nodded slowly and truthfully. "Yes," she said simply. "Dr. Benedict has picked out a wonderful child's nurse for her. She'll be better in her care."

The baby began to cry fretfully, its tiny face contorted painfully. Eleanor lifted her tenderly and sat down in a low rocker. After a little the cries stopped and the little fingers clutched Eleanor's hand. The baby face, with eyes so wide and pathetic looked up into hers.

Eleanor said softly: "It's silly, isn't it, to think she knows me? But when I pick her up she stops crying. Poor little baby! Its mummy won't let anything happen to it."

Kate thought of the burden of detail that she had had to manage since Eleanor had left her. She thought of the girl's love of her work. She thought of Phil's face when he talked about a house on Long Island. Her eyes were fastened on the baby face soothed now in Eleanor's arms.

She said: "Eleanor, I've come to tell you that I can't take you back now. Perhaps in three or four months. . . . The budget is tight. But we'll talk about it in the spring."

TO CITY OFFICIALS

GENTLEMEN: Operation of the traffic light at Mill and Court streets has aided greatly in reducing speeding in that district, convincing proof that a three-way light at Court street and the Ringgold pike would aid the control of traffic there. After councilmen were unable to purchase a used three-way light some months ago they dropped all consideration of the proposition. Now is the time to revive the issue before the tourist season opens and Route 23 is jammed with traffic.

CIRCUITEER.

TO COUNTY FOLK

FRIENDS: The annual oratorical contest of the Pickaway schools will be conducted this evening in the centralized school in Williamsport. The event always pits the best orators of the various schools against each other for a trophy that is emblematic of championships. The event next year will be held in the school of tonight's winner. Charles Dreisbach won in 1938, thus Williamsport is the host for the 1939 event. An excellent musical program has been arranged to augment the various addresses, so that the orations do not become monotonous at any time. Each pupil will have a different subject. The event promises to be very interesting and should attract a capacity crowd. My suggestion is that all who wish to enjoy the program should appear in the Sulphur Springs pavilion early, or all the seats may be taken.

CIRCUITEER.

TO L. E. MILLER

DEAR SIR: Circleville folk hope you will be able to start a street improvement program soon. Some of the city's black top streets are in bad condition from Winter wear and from the recent heavy rains. Motorists realize it has been out of the question to do any patching in recent weeks due to weather conditions. They hope that when weather permits you will rush street and alley improvements as rapidly as possible. The rains have made some of the holes much deeper and larger.

CIRCUITEER.

TO MARY HAYS, RUTH CLARK

STUDENTS: Congratulations go to you this week for the honor bestowed on you by school authorities, but won by your respective abilities. Circleville is proud of you for being named as valedictorian and salutatorian, respectively, in the Circleville high school graduating class. Your grades have been high during all four years of your school work, both of you have participated in many school activities, and both of you are truly deserving of all honors that will be bestowed on you at the annual Commencement on June 2. Your achievements should prove to be a challenge to boys of the high school, who should not be content to see both of the highest available honors provided for the graduating class go to the fairer sex.

CIRCUITEER.

TO ROTARY CLUB

CIVIC LEADERS: The entire community joins in applauding your Easter seal sale and your card party and dance, sponsored for the benefit of Circleville, Pickaway county and Ohio crippled children. The projects required much work and the only regret I have is that so few members of the club were called on to do most of the work. But that is nearly always the case, it seems, when an organization attempts projects such as these. But thank goodness there are some civic leaders who will take time from their business to work for the benefit of those unfortunate who are not able to enjoy life in its fullest measure.

CIRCUITEER.

TO COUNCIL

MEMBERS: Circleville residents would like to know when you expect to start operation of the new disposal plant. They are told the plant has been ready for operation for some time but has never been accepted from the contractor or a date set to start it. Funds are now available for operating expenses. Residents realize that the quarterly collection is under the sewer rental system but still they dislike paying for a service that has not been received. If the plant is ready for operation, funds are available, and employees have been appointed. Why the delay?

CIRCUITEER.

TO FUN SEEKERS

FOLK: Mark up the date of May 17 to attend the Policeman's and Fireman's ball sponsored by the Kiwanis Club. This ball will have a three-fold purpose. The proceeds will be divided three ways. Kiwanians will use their share of the funds for aiding underprivileged children. Firemen will use the money they receive in their annual toy campaign at Christmas. The police department will use its share for new equipment needed in the department. These dances have been outstanding successes in other cities and there is no reason why Circleville should not make it an annual affair. The program will include a floor show and plenty of good music.

CIRCUITEER.

TO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

MEMBERS: Appointment of a committee to study ways of stimulating interest in home building in Circleville is a splendid idea. This city has a definite need for small homes and apartments. I believe one of your major objectives should be to encourage young folk to build and own their homes. A campaign should be started on the construction of homes in the lower price bracket, the payments on which would fit in the budget of the younger folk. If construction of one of these homes by the Chamber of Commerce will aid, then build one this summer to show what can be done.

World At A Glance

—By— Charles P. Stewart

When President Roosevelt the other day listed thirty-one countries that he said he wanted Hitler and Mussolini to promise to let alone for at least the next ten years, he overlooked one or two bets. If he hadn't he could have scored 32 or 33. The same edition of the newspapers that published the text of the presidential appeal to Der Fuehrer and Il Duce also published dispatches that Iceland is jittery over what's regarded there as the threat of a German grab and that the republic of Andorra is worrying lest Italy make a swipe at it by way of Spain. To be sure, Iceland theoretically belongs to Denmark, and the White House message to Berlin and Rome did ask for an assurance that the Danes would be left in peace. Still, the Icelanders are semi-independent; they do their own legislating and are about as separate from the homeland as Ireland is separate from England. And the President included Ireland in his list, as a distinct entity. So why not Iceland, too?

I surmise that not many folks here know where or what Andorra is. Well, it's a little nation, approximately the size of a Texas county, and with 15,000 or 20,000 population, astraddle the Pyrenees, between France and Spain. Oh, it's small, but it's been a republic in its own right since the days of Charlemagne; he created it. It's

as much entitled to consideration as Liechtenstein, anyway, and the President mentioned Liechtenstein. I suspect that he didn't think of Andorra at all. If he had, he'd have had a complete list. It would have been longer, more imposing and perfectly accurate.

FASCIST AGENTS ACTIVE

The Icelanders complain that German agents are snooping around in their capital, Reykjavik, and their opinion is that Herr Hitler has an eye on their island. It's understandable that he may covet it. It isn't worth much for itself alone. Nevertheless it has fine fishing waters roundabout it. As a naval and aviation base it also would be exceedingly valuable to strike from in the direction of northern Scotland and in the direction of northeastern Canada likewise. And it's very conveniently accessible to Germany's Baltic and North Sea ports. German occupation of it would be a terrible nuisance to the British in time of war. Indeed, those waters were a great anxiety to the British during the world conflict.

Andorra hasn't Iceland's strategic importance. If Italy really is in control of Spain it's a menace to southern France, of course, but regardless of Andorra, France and Spain parallel one another most of the way from the Mediterranean to the Bay of Biscay. Andorra is nurse who really knows how to take care of a baby that she'll put her on a routine."

"A trained nurse? Won't that be expensive?"

He made a great do-do of studying the burning paper of his cigarette. "Nell's sold me on the idea of using her salary for the nurse."

"Phil—how do you really feel about it?"

He shrugged his shoulders. "I'm old-fashioned, Kate. I think a mother knows best how to take care of her own baby, but I'm only a man and I'm not supposed to know about those things. Also, I'm just a guy who's now in love with two women—Jessica and Nell. I want the baby to have the best there is—but I also want Nell to be happy. I guess she knows best."

"For a girl as young as she is, Eleanor has a lot of sense," Kate said, making a pencil correction on her copy. "If she were not to come back to work, do you think you could both manage on your salary and bring up the baby in that apartment?"

A copy boy came in and collected Kate's papers.

When he went out, Phil said: "Kate, I've got a swell idea. I haven't told Nell yet. That's what I came in to talk over with you. Fifty a week isn't much in New York, but there are a lot of places on Long Island where we could get a little house. Places where there's lots of sunshine and Nell could be outdoors with the baby. She saved money before the baby was born and most of it has been spent on the specialist, but there's a little left. Enough to move on."

"It wouldn't be for long. I'm going to get to work on the novel pretty soon. It doesn't matter about me, Kate."

"I can see it doesn't," she said with a smile.

He said, "Nell's coming down to see you tomorrow morning about starting to work again."

"And what is it you really want me to do?" she asked.

Phil caught his underlip in his teeth. "Whatever you think is right, Kate. You're older than Nell and you know more about these things than I do. I want her to be happy. Some women aren't happy when they're housekeepers. Other women . . . well, you'll know what to do."

"Phil, I need Eleanor. And, as you say, some women should do the thing they want to do. I'll have to think about it. I have to think of her as well as you—and the baby. Tell her not to come down in the morning. I'll stop by. I want to see the baby anyway."

His face brightened. "I'll trust you, Kate. And remember, I want you to consider Nell. Wait until you see Jessica. You'll see a big improvement in her."

Climbing the stairs to the Parrishes apartment, Kate prayed that she would see an improvement in the baby. But it was a pale little inanimate face that looked at her from a small crib in the dark bedroom.

Eleanor was excited. "Oh, Kate, just to look at your face is to recapture living!" she said, pouring coffee for her guest. "I've a whole program of budget stories laid out. I haven't written them because I wanted to get your reaction, but my fingers itch for the typewriter."

Kate stirred sugar in her coffee without taking her eyes from the girl's face. "You've printer's ink in your veins, Eleanor Parrish!"

Eleanor nodded happily. "I guess I have. It's been a wonderful experience having Jessica and I love every inch of her, but I love something else, too, and I'm lonely for it."

"Child, the world is full of women who've drowned themselves in printer's ink to forget that they haven't a morsel like Jessica to love."

Eleanor nodded impatiently. "I know. But if they were wise, they could have had both. I'm not going to let my career interfere with bringing up my baby. Please believe that."

"And now you are going to say that you aren't going to let Jessica interfere with your career?"

"You do believe that I love my baby, don't you? And that I should be what I am—a career woman?"

Kate nodded slowly and truthfully. "Yes," she said simply.

"Dr. Benedict has picked out a wonderful child's nurse for her. She'll be better in her care."

The baby began to cry fretfully, its tiny face contorted painfully.

Eleanor lifted her tenderly and sat down in a low rocker. After a little the cries stopped and the little fingers clutched Eleanor's hand. The baby face, with eyes so wide and pathetic looked up into hers.

Eleanor said softly: "It's silly, isn't it, to think she knows me? But when I pick her up she stops crying. Poor little baby! Its mummy won't let anything happen to it."

Kate thought of the burden of detail that she had had to manage since Eleanor had left her. She thought of the girl's love of her work. She thought of Phil's face when he talked about a house on Long Island. Her eyes soothed now in Eleanor's arms.

She said: "Eleanor, I've come to tell you that I can't take you back now. Perhaps in three or four months. . . . The budget is tight. But we'll talk about it in the spring."

Crowd of 400 Witnesses Production Of "Womanless Wedding", Thursday

By Lyall Cryder

Lipstick, rouge, evening dresses and picture hats plus 60 business and professional men of Circleville formed the basis of one of the most mirth provoking performances ever presented in the city. "Womanless Wedding" as presented Thursday evening in Memorial Hall by the ladies of the Methodist Episcopal church was a riot of fun from beginning to end.

Starting with the appearance of the butler, with his traditional side whiskers, who announced each guest with dignity and aplomb, until the coming of the beautiful blond bride with her surprisingly sick bridegroom, the first polite smiles quickly became roars of hearty laughter.

All the bride's relatives and friends including charming debutantes, radio and screen celebrities gathered for the wedding, each presenting a neat little comedy sketch, song or dance before being seated and served punch by the beautiful assisting hostesses.

Ikey Rosenstein, who had a complete store in his peddler's box, gained entrance after the bride's butler threw him out, and surprisingly had an appropriate article for each guest. Mae West, curves and all, overcame General Pershing's dignity with her alluring invitation to "Come up and see me some time" after singing a popular song in a rich throaty contralto voice.

The Modern Maid assisted by Bing Crosby won rounds of applause with the figures of the Lambeth Walk and then, alone, tapped a truly marvelous routine.

The singing of Grace Moore in a sweet soprano voice charmed everyone and Shirley Temple was so overcome with her curls and dainty dress that even without her sweet little solo she won an enviable place in the cast.

The poor henpecked husband with his roving eye was sternly brought to task by his devoted wife as each beautiful guest arrived at the wedding.

Copious tears were shed by the bride's weeping mother, who wept throughout the entire performance, being consoled untiringly by her comforting husband. She greeted all her wedding guests as befitted their importance, even giving her undivided attention to the bride's baby sister who appeared to be in trouble when wheeled in by the Negro mammy.

A visit by Ted Lewis accompanied by his talented shadow was one of the choice bits of the home talent performance, which so abounded in unusual situations that it is worth a couple of hours of anybody's time. If your personal dignity is such that you shrink from hearty laughter in public places, do not attend the second performance of "Womanless Wedding" tonight, for there are more laughs packed in this two hour presentation than are usually found in a dozen.

Music by the high school orchestra entertained the audience for the interval preceding the play. Mrs. Frank Kline, at the piano, and Dwight Weiler, violinist, accompanied all soloists and the chorus and dance numbers. Hilaire Haecker, accordionist, played two numbers to the delight of the large audience. Approximately 400 gathered in the hall for the performance.

The cast included Dr. G. D. Phillips, butler; Byron Eby, punch girl; Robert Norpoth, present taker; Frank Lynch, the bride's weeping mother; Dan McClain, the bride's comforting father; Dr. J. J. Baker and Ned Plum, the bride's bad brothers; William Goodchild, Ikey Rosenstein; James Trimmer, the bride's old maid aunt; Ray Reid, Charlie Chaplin; William Avis, the bride's grandmother; Clyde Leist, the bride's grandfather; Dwight Steele and Ted Schmidt, the bride's twin sisters, Sam Chambers, the bridegroom's haughty father; B. T. Hedges, the bridegroom's haughty mother; Ned Dresbach, Shirley Temple; Malcolm Parrett, devoted wife; Will McCrady, henpecked husband; Waldon Reichelderfer, fashion plate; Hilaire Haecker, accordion Sam; Jay L. Clark, Mmille. Parree; Gladden Troutman, Ted Lewis; George Edward Cockerham, the shadow; Frank Barnhill, Aunt Mirandine from Hicksville; Herschel Hill, Uncle Silas from Hicksville; Loren Pace, Bing Crosby; George Grand-Girard, Kentucky Colonel; Clarence Hott, his lady; James I. Smith, Jr., modern maid; Glen Weiler, Rosie O'Grady; Glen Hines, Pat O'Grady; Joe Lynch, Negro mammy; Harry Bartholomew, baby sister; Addison Ziemer, long lost brother; Herman Hill, Franklin D. Roosevelt; Earl Hilyard, Eleanor D. Roosevelt; Cary Leist, Nelson Eddy; George Littleton, Gen. John J. Pershing; Thomas Heffner, Mae West; V. M. Cress, Barton Deming, Jack Heeter, John Kellstadt and Jack Clifton, Dionne quintuplets; Charles Kirkpatrick, Grace Moore; Tom Hardin and Tom Dewey, groomsmen; Junior Sweyer and David Hilyard, bridesmaids; John Styers, bishop; Jack Imier, maid of honor; Earl Pearce, ring bearer; Dale Ankrom and Clermont McClure, flower girls; Ray Rowland, bride; the bride-

talent performance, which so abounded in unusual situations that it is worth a couple of hours of anybody's time. If your personal dignity is such that you shrink from hearty laughter in public places, do not attend the second performance of "Womanless Wedding" tonight, for there are more laughs packed in this two hour presentation than are usually found in a dozen.

Music by the high school orchestra entertained the audience for the interval preceding the play. Mrs. Frank Kline, at the piano, and Dwight Weiler, violinist, accompanied all soloists and the chorus and dance numbers. Hilaire Haacker, accordionist, played two numbers to the delight of the large audience. Approximately 400 gathered in the hall for the performance.

The cast included Dr. G. D. Phillips, butler; Byron Eby, punch girl; Robert Norpoth, present taker; Frank Lynch, the bride's weeping mother; Dan McClain, the bride's comforting father; Dr. J. J. Baker and Ned Plum, the bride's had brothers; William Goodchild, Ikey Rosenstein; James Trimmer, the bride's old maid aunt; Ray Reid, Charlie Chaplin; William Avis, the bride's grandmother; Clyde Leist, the bride's grandfather; Dwight Steele and Ted Schmidt, the bride's twin sisters, Sam Chambers, the bridegroom's haughty father; B. T. Hedges, the bridegroom's haughty mother; Ned Dresbach, Shirley Temple; Malcolm Parrett, devoted wife; Will McCrady, henpecked husband; Waldon Reichelderfer, fashion plate; Hilaire Haacker, accordion Sam; Jay L. Clark, Mille. Paree; Gladden Troutman, Ted Lewis; George Edward Cock-

HERE'S REPORT OF OVERNIGHT SPORTS EVENTS

By International News Service

For the next few years it will be Ralph Guldahl against the field in all the major golf tournaments, according to Innis Brown, an authority on the game.

New York Yankees turn out to be same old wrecking crew in trimming Boston Red Sox 2 to 0 in inaugural.

Other American league results: Philadelphia 2, Washington 0; Detroit 8, Chicago 7 (14 innings).

National League results: Brooklyn 5, New York 3; Boston 2; Philadelphia 0.

Vice-president Garner and Postmaster General Farley officiate at opening day ceremonies between Washington Senators and New York Yankees.

Tony Galento's conditioning for Joe Louis bout to include series of exhibition bouts in Far West.

As many as 20 horses may go to the post in 65th running of Kentucky Derby.

YANKS TAKE UP BATS TO SEEK ANOTHER TITLE

NEW YORK, April 21—Boston's Red Sox and Detroit's Tigers may be greatly improved ball clubs this season. But it also may be said without fear of successful contradiction that New York's Yankees are by no means ready for an invalid's chair.

It needed only one game for the Yanks to convince Joe Cronin that the Yanks are the same old wrecking crew and today the Boston pilot is wondering if any club can even come close to them.

The Yanks had their inaugural yesterday and they started right in where they left off in the World Series last Fall by trimming the Red Sox, 2-0. And they used the same old recipe to turn the trick—superlative pitching, sensational fielding and plenty of power.

The world's champions made only seven hits off the rejuvenated Lefty Grove whose arm seems to have recovered its old

HERE'S REPORT OF OVERNIGHT SPORTS EVENTS

By International News Service

For the next few years it will be Ralph Guldahl against the field in all the major golf tournaments, according to Innis Brown, an authority on the game.

New York Yankees turn out to be same old wrecking crew in trimming Boston Red Sox 2 to 0 in inaugural.

Other American league results: Philadelphia 2, Washington 0; Detroit 8, Chicago 7 (14 innings). National League results: Brooklyn 5, New York 3; Boston 2; Philadelphia 0.

Vice-president Garner and Postmaster General Farley officiate at opening day ceremonies between Washington Senators and New York Yankees.

Tony Galento's conditioning for Joe Louis bout to include series of exhibition bouts in Far West.

As many as 20 horses may go to the post in 65th running of Kentucky Derby.

YANKS TAKE UP BATS TO SEEK ANOTHER TITLE

NEW YORK, April 21—Boston's

Red Sox and Detroit's Tigers may be greatly improved ball clubs this season. But it also may be said without fear of successful contradiction that New York's Yankees are by no means ready for an invalid's chair.

It needed only one game for the Yanks to convince Joe Cronin that the Yanks are the same old wrecking crew and today the Boston pilot is wondering if any club can even come close to them.

The Yanks had their inaugural yesterday and they started right in where they left off in the World Series last Fall by trimming the Red Sox, 2-0. And they used the same old recipe to turn the trick—superlative pitching, sensational fielding and plenty of power.

The world's champions made only seven hits off the rejuvenated Lefty Grove whose arm seems to have recovered its old skill if not its old power, but on of those seven hits was a homer by Bill Dickey and the other was a triple by Jake Powell following an error by Jimmy Foy and away went the ball game.

Red Ruffing, one of the American league's two 20-game winners of last season, also gave seven hits but there were no homers or triples among them.

St. Augustine, Fla., the oldest city in the United States, was founded in 1565, more than 200 years before the Revolutionary war.

20 HORSES MAY SEEK KENTUCKY DERBY'S GOLD

Odds Juggled After El Chico Loses; Johnstown Rates Much Support

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 21 —

As many as 20 horses may go to the post in the 65th running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs May 6th, with six or seven sharing nearly equal odds as the favorite.

Accidents or the outcome of a few more "previews" to the great race could, and probably will, altar at least the number of entrants. But, on the basis of performances last year, workouts this year and the sudden change of Winter book odds when El Chico lost and Johnstown won at Jamaica, the calculations will hold as long as any listing on a horse-race.

In the future listing Johnstown took the lead over El Chico, with Chilledon and Porter's Mite holding their own a slight edge off of first place. With these three top-fighters are Technician and Xalapa Clown, in Downs workouts, have blown out brilliantly in all kinds of weather and on wet, dry and soggy tracks. Our Mat will be in the upper group unless he bows out in favor of his stablemate, El Chico.

To these six or seven go the burden of "coming through" if they expect to live up to their ratings, training, performances and the calculations of competent observers.

In the next bracket are Hush and Third Degree who have won at Keeneland racetrack, near Lexington, Ky., this week.

Horses Lined Up

Next in line are Ariel Toy, No Competition, Lightspur, Yale O'Nine, and T. M. Dorsett, with Time Alone and Steel Heels coming in the next division. Then On Location, Early Mon, Giles County and Touch and Go.

There is always a chance that a complete outsider, sticking for the purse fun of it, will be in the lineup, and for all anyone knows he may be the winner. Lawrin, an outsider but a fast horse nevertheless, was overlooked in 1938 until he pounded home ahead of Dauber, with the top favorite, Fighting Fox, away in the rear.

There is a big possibility, too, that Our Mat will drop out in favor of El Chico; that On Location and Giles County will toss the torch to No Competition, admittedly the best in the barns of Mrs. Ethel V. Mars this year, and that Hush or Third Degree, both from Mrs. Payne Whitney's stables, will go alone.

This would eliminate four, leaving 16 probabilities for the trek to the post.

RED BIRDS WIN FIRST VICTORY OF 1939 CHASE

COLUMBUS, April 21—Max Macon and Pete Hader combined Thursday to hand the Kansas City minor league champions a row of calamities as Columbus' Red Birds hung up their first victory of the current A. A. season by a 4-0 score. The Kaseys had 17 runners left on the bases.

Each team gained nine hits, but the Birds concentrated theirs off the tosses of Al Peichota, brilliant right-hander.

GALENTI GOES WEST

NEW YORK, April 21—Tony Galento's conditioning program for his heavyweight title challenge against Joe Louis in June will include a series of exhibition matches in the Far West. Manager Joe Jacobs announced today as he and the retund battler prepared to leave for California that Galento's first ring workout will be at San Francisco on April 26, and other engagements will be filled at Sacramento, San Jose, Fresno, Stockton, San Diego, Reno and Denver, Jacobs said.

The semifinals of the Pickaway county Amateur boxing tournament, sponsored by the Soldier's and Sailor's Monumental association, will get under way Monday evening at 8:15 o'clock. Finals will be staged the following night at the same hour in Memorial Hall.

All boys have been training hard for the last week in preparation for the contests.

A bout which will stand out is that between the two popular youths, Shirley Hulse and Homer Patrick in the open division. These boys have tangled before and in each of their contests both have tossed plenty of gloves. There is little to choose between the two. Hulse is built in a more compact manner than Patrick, but the latter has a little height that helps him overcome his foe's ruggedness. When these lads go into a ring there is no telling which will come out the victor.

Although Patrick has won two out of three matches from Hulse he has never held a title, while Hulse was featherweight division titlist in 1937 and lightweight division champion in 1938.

Another bout that appears attractive will pit Patrick's kid brother, Dempsey, against Edgar Byrd, clever Circleville Negro youngster.

Other entrants who have survived preliminaries and those who have not yet fought are as follows: Gardner Beatty, Scioto; Jim Miller, Ashville; Dale Easter, Williamsport; Allen Ankrum, Circleville; Bob Thompson, Walnut; Bob Barnes, Circleville; Jack Thompson, Jackson; Pete Dewey, Circleville; Carl Griffey, Circleville; Floyd Burchwell, Circleville; John Wertman, Washington township; George Mowery, Jackson township; Jimmy Price, Circleville; Matthew Grubb, Walnut; Paul Kennedy, Jackson; Paul Wil-

Factories May Not Feel Pinch Of Coal Strike

Circleville Industries Able To Replenish Supplies During Week

PRESIDENT IS SILENT

Perkins Indicates Executive May Intervene If Union, Operators Stay Apart

Threats of the nationwide coal strike have had no serious effects on Circleville to date. Supplies of some dealers were low Friday but others reported they could meet normal demands. The recent wet weather and low temperatures have resulted in dealers selling more coal than usual at this season of the year. Circleville's major industries have sufficient coal on hand for operations for some time. Robert Ekins, manager of the Container Corporation, said sufficient coal has been obtained to meet plant needs until May 15, more coal having been purchased this week. The Eschelman mill has a two week supply ahead. "We won't be pinched for several weeks," John Eschelman said. The Ralston-Purina plant keeps a week's supply on hand and has been able to obtain coal this week. President Roosevelt may intervene in the coal dispute if the current negotiations deadlock is not broken soon. Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, visited Mr. Roosevelt, Thursday, to discuss threats of the nationwide coal strike. To date there are 330,000 miners in eight eastern states idle and the threat of a walkout on May 5 would include an additional 150,000 soft coal miners throughout the United States.

NEW YORK, April 21—Continuing inability of mine owners and union leaders to agree on a new labor contract for the soft coal fields of the Appalachian area gave rise to gloomy forebodings today that the present suspension of work will enter into its fourth week beginning Monday. President Roosevelt continued to maintain an attitude of aloofness, disregarding pleas that he intervene. The White House stood on its previous informal announcement that the President would not take a hand in the impasse until all instruments of federal conciliation had broken down. Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins optimistically announced at Washington that she expected a quick end to the prolonged deadlock over the closed shop issue after receiving a report from John R. Steelman, chief of the federal conciliation service. But nothing to bear out such optimism was evident at the New York conferences.

STARS SAY—

For Friday, April 21
A most propitious chain of planetary configurations make this day one to be long remembered for its far-reaching effect on the life and its happy destiny. It seems that every human element is involved in an effort toward expansion, adventure, romance, prestige and attainment. High stations in politics or diplomacy beckon. Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a year in which ambitions, aspirations and heart's desires will be achieved. It should be a time to be long remembered for fulfillments, gratifications and happiness of body, mind and soul. Aim at high goals. A child born on this day may have excellent endowments of mind, heart and soul. It should attain the most exalted and worthy of human objectives. Its talents and character assure it distinguished place in politics, diplomacy or educational work.

TRESPASSER FINED
Millard Fraley, Long avenue, was fined $5 and costs in Squire B. T. Hedges' court, Friday, on a charge of trespassing on Norfolk & Western railroad property. He was committed to the county jail after failure to settle. The charge was filed by G. W. Stiff, railroad detective.

OHIO DIRECTOR ASSAILS CLARK COUNTY "FRAUD"

contained affidavits substantiating the charges. He added that he has evidence that a total of 460 employees were on the maintenance payroll in Clark county until after the primary last year. Usually, he added, a crew of 30 to 40 is all that is necessary. The Truax report read in part: "Submitted herewith are documents relating to subversive activities of the maintenance and repair division of state highway division 7 during the administration of former Gov. Martin L. Davey, particularly during the Fall of 1937, 1938 and January 1939. "A cursory examination of records in both the Clark county highway garage office and the division office convinces the writer that an audit of records will bring to light many irregularities."

Direct From Leaders
Truax further charged that highway department orders had come directly from political leaders in that section.

Since the investigation began a month ago the following employees have been suspended by Beightler in Clark county: Robert Connell, county superintendent; Daniel Sadler, Joseph Foley and David Condon, foremen, and Daniel Sullivan, timekeeper. All have applied to the state Civil Service Commission for reinstatement. "It is apparent," said Beightler, "that instead of spending highway funds for the purpose for which they were intended they were used for everything else." The director said he did not know how much money was involved but would ask the attorney general's office immediately to conduct its own investigation before deciding what action would be taken against alleged offenders.

finally stopping on the Scioto river bridge on Frank road, Columbus. They threatened to toss him into the river, but decided to abandon him along the stream. Beckett's watch, given to him 30 years before by his father, $10 in cash and his car were stolen. He managed to work himself clear of the tape and made his way to the highway where he was given aid.

Shooting Clears Abduction

The abduction was cleared up several days later after a shooting affray in which Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell and Morris Boggs were wounded by Claude Salisbury, Columbus. Gerald McGraw, a brother of the man now up for parole, was with Salisbury. After his arrest he "broke" the Beckett case after questioning by the sheriff's aides. He involved his brother, Mullins and Bragg. Because of his assistance in clearing up the case, McGraw was granted a parole from the Mansfield reformatory about a year ago. The others are still serving time, Salisbury in the London prison farm where he is head cook, according to the deputies. He has been refused a parole.

Safe Crackers Paroled

In the meantime, prison officials announced Friday that Curtis Walton, of Lancaster, convicted of robbing the safe in the S. C. Grant coal office, will go free on parole next May 1. Walton's release is conditional. George Shepherd, of Mt. Sterling, convicted of chicken theft, will be freed May 20. Both men are incarcerated at the London prison farm.

RAILROAD LAYOFF ADDS MEN TO STATE AID ROLL

Approximately 120 Circleville and Pickaway county residents are receiving payments weekly through the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation.

Officials in Circleville, Friday, said this figure had been about steady in recent weeks. The branch office of the bureau is conducted in the engineer's department at the courthouse every Friday.

About ten claims have been filed recently as a result of temporary layoffs on railroads due to the coal strike, employees said. So far no claims have been paid as a three week waiting period is required.

"FAKE" BROADCAST OF WAR PROVES TOO REAL

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 21—"Peace" returned today to the campus of Manchester college at nearby North Manchester, Ind., after an anti-war demonstration that carried so much punch it caused women to weep and one student to faint.

A fake broadcast supposedly from England telling of war in Europe and the entrance of the United States on the side of the allies against Germany and Italy had many listeners in hysteria.

At the end of the program, a speaker said: "You have just been through a dress rehearsal of what may really come in a few months, or even in a few days."

Hitler To Use Answers To Query In Address To Reichstag

their powerful German neighbor seems out of the question.

Up until noon today, Finland, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Sweden, Greece, Turkey, Rumania and Yugoslavia had been asked by Hitler:

1—Do you feel yourself menaced by Germany?
2—Did you solicit President Roosevelt's message?

The manner of this interrogation leaves small chance for anything but negative replies, which it is understood Hitler will compile in an attempt to use his Reichstag speech as proof not only of Germany's innocence but of Mr. Roosevelt's guilt as a "war-monger."

It was pointed out in diplomatic circles that Hitler's present method displays a new orientation with regard to the United States. Instead of replying in the heat of his first fury, he has adopted a scheme to play on American prejudices.

Few countries in Europe or their public are expected to be much impressed by the results of his current questionnaire. It is assumed, therefore, that Hitler hopes chiefly to influence public opinion in America which he regards as "naive" so far as European diplomacy is concerned.

Ribbentrop Busy

London officials, reading these words, feared that Ribbentrop, doing everything in his power to break up the anti-aggression bloc, had worked his "magic" on Gafencu.

At the same time, it was learned that the British government is chary of extending the non-aggression lineup into the Far East.

The government was revealed to have stalled on a definite request, lodged in London by China through diplomatic channels, to be included in the non-aggression guarantee scheme.

British Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax indicated that while China's inclusion in the bloc would be "desirable," the proposal "at present is premature."

China, involved in a long and bloody undeclared war with Japan, would welcome inclusion in the anti-aggression pact on grounds that it would increase the support, moral and otherwise, which she has been receiving from Britain and France.

London authorities were heartened, however, by the response received from Moscow.

They admitted that the British and French governments have been exchanging views regarding the Russian proposals and that certain definite conclusions have arisen from these exchanges.

FACTORIES MAY NOT FEEL PINCH OF COAL STRIKE

Circleville Industries Able To Replenish Supplies During Week

PRESIDENT IS SILENT

Perkins Indicates Executive May Intervene If Union, Operators Stay Apart

Threats of the nationwide coal strike have had no serious effects on Circleville to date.

Supplies of some dealers were low Friday but others reported they could meet normal demands. The recent wet weather and low temperatures have resulted in dealers selling more coal than usual at this season of the year.

Circleville's major industries have sufficient coal on hand for operations for some time. Robert Elkins, manager of the Container Corporation, said sufficient coal has been obtained to meet plant needs until May 15, more coal having been purchased this week.

The Eshelman mill has a two week supply ahead. "We won't be pinched for several weeks," John Eshelman said. The Ralston-Purina plant keeps a week's supply on hand and has been able to obtain coal this week.

President Roosevelt may intervene in the coal dispute if the current negotiations deadlock is not broken soon. Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, visited Mr. Roosevelt, Thursday, to discuss threats of the nationwide coal strike.

To date there are 330,000 miners in eight eastern states idle and the threat of a walkout on May 5 would include an additional 150,000 soft coal miners throughout the United States.

NEW YORK, April 21—Continuing inability of mine owners and union leaders to agree on a new labor contract for the soft coal fields of the Appalachian area gave rise to gloomy forebodings today that the present suspension of work will enter into its fourth week beginning Monday.

President Roosevelt continued to maintain an attitude of aloofness, disregarding pleas that he intervene. The White House stood on its previous informal announcement that the President would not take a hand in the impasse until all instruments of federal conciliation had broken down.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins optimistically announced at Washington that she expected a quick end to the prolonged deadlock over the closed shop issue after receiving a report from John R. Steelman, chief of the federal conciliation service. But nothing to bear out such optimism was evident at the New York conferences.

STARS SAY—

For Friday, April 21

A most propitious chain of planetary configurations make this day one to be long remembered for its far-reaching effect on the life and its happy destiny. It seems that every human element is involved in an effort toward expansion, adventure, romance, prestige and attainment. High stations in politics or diplomacy beckon.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a year in which ambitions, aspirations and heart's desires will be achieved. It should be a time to be long remembered for fulfillments, gratifications and happiness of body, mind and soul. Aim at high goals.

A child born on this day may have excellent endowments of mind, heart and soul. It should attain the most exalted and worthy of human objectives. Its talents and character assure it distinguished place in politics, diplomacy or educational work.

OHIO DIRECTOR ASSAILS CLARK COUNTY "FRAUD"

contained affidavits substantiating the charges. He added that he has evidence that a total of 460 employees were on the maintenance payroll in Clark county until after the primary last year. Usually, he added, a crew of 30 to 40 is all that is necessary.

The Truxax report read in part: "Submitted herewith are documents relating to subversive activities of the maintenance and repair division of state highway division 7 during the administration of former Gov. Martin L. Davey, particularly during the Fall of 1937, 1938 and January 1939.

"A cursory examination of records in both the Clark county highway garage office and the division office convinces the writer that an audit of records will bring to light many irregularities."

Direct From Leaders
Truxax further charged that highway department orders had come directly from political leaders in that section.

Since the investigation began a month ago the following employees have been suspended by Beightler in Clark county:

Robert Connell, county superintendent; Daniel Sadler, Joseph Foley and David Condon, foremen, and Daniel Sullivan, timekeeper. All have applied to the state Civil Service Commission for reinstatement.

"It is apparent," said Beightler, "that instead of spending highway funds for the purpose for which they were intended they were used for everything else."

The director said he did not know how much money was involved but would ask the attorney general's office immediately to conduct its own investigation before deciding what action would be taken against alleged offenders.
